Dump Hassles Send Trucks Elsewhere

At least one refuse collection firm is using a private garbage dump in order to avoid confrontation with pickets at Hartland road dump which is owned by the Capital Regional District.

The regional district is among municipal employers who have locked out staff in their dispute with Canadian Union of Public Employees, which initiated strike action Jan. 27.

Cypress Disposal Ltd., which lists Greater Victoria School district among its clients, said today it had switched to an undisclosed alternative site because it has no wish to fight with CUPE and will not cross picket lines.

Some other private disposal operators have adopted a similar attitude and are refusing to go through the picket being maintained by the Saanich CUPE Local 374 at Hartland Road.

Since the regional district acquired the Hartland site from its former owner Victoria Disposal Co. Ltd.—which remains the operator—other garbage dumps in the region were closed, leaving as the only alternative the use of private land not recognized for the purpose.

Jim Walker, president of Local 50 and chairman of the regional CUPE bargaining group, said the union is aware of the Cypress arrangement but has not determined as yet where the garbage is being dumped. He said it is believed an excavating contractor is providing a site.

Meanwhile CUPE today underlined its picketing policy, embodying the right to inform the public of its legal strike-lockout position. Walker said pickets have the right to tell drivers intending to enter the dump of their purpose, but not to detain or obstruct traffic on the public road.

Wednesday there were brushes between pickets and garbage truck drivers, pickets blocked the road with a pick-up truck and in one case a picket was bruised by a truck.

Walker said there are "a lot people who respect the line and take off." Police have been watching the picket line.

Effectiveness of the picket policy showed up today when B.C. Hydro agreed to re-route buses from Esquimalt Road to Bay Street in order to avoid crossing a CUPE line at Johnson Street lift bridge.

The Esquimalt and Colville-Munro routes are the only two affected, Hydro said, adding that the situation would be reviewed later today.

CUPE requested the Amalgamated Transportation union

OWNER BEWARE!

ARVADA, Colo. (AP) Owners of pets that stray in this Denver suburb had better watch out. A drafting error in the city's animal control ordinance, just noticed, provides that if a stray pet picked up by the city is not claimed by its owner within 24 hours, the owner will be destroyed.

IRA Threat Puts Dublin in Huddle

Times News Services

DUBLIN — Premier Liam Cosgrave called a special cabinet meeting today, the second within 12 hours, to discuss a threat by the Irish Republican Army to assassinate two cabinet ministers if any of the imprisoned 15 IRA hunger strikers die.

"They will review the whole security situation in the light of the latest developments," a government source said.

Details of the threat came after members of the parliamentary Laobr party were briefed privately Wednesday by Justice Minister Patrick Cooney, on the hunger strike situation.

The Labor party sources said that Cooney had indicated the IRA warning was transmitted to the government 10 days ago. Separate messages have been carried to the government by two groups of intermediaries. Both groups said they had been requested by the provisionals to tell the government that if any hunger striker died, two ministers would be killed.

Members of the provisional Sein Fein, the IRA's legal political wing, mounted pickets on the Dublin headquarters of all the main political parties in support of the hunger strikes Wednesday.

The strikers are seeking segregation, political status and a renewal of food parcel privileges.

In Northern Ireland, A gunman burst into the Shankill Road headquarters of the protestant west Belfast Ulster defence association today and shot and wounded West Belfast UDA leader Charles Harding Smith in the abdomen and shoulder.

The body of a young woman was found shot twice through the head on a country road outside Larne, 25 miles northeast of Belfast today. Police said they had not yet identified the woman and could not say whether it was a sectarian killing.

PM OFFERS BIG SPLASH TO CRITIC

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has invited one of his most vociferous Conservative critics to use the swimming pool being built at his official residence.

He extended the invitation in the Commons Wednesday when Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) continued to press him for details on the pool, which is being paid for by a group of anonymous donors.

Trudeau said Cossitt could come over any time to practice his diving "even before the water's in the pool."

A VACATION HOME FOR ULTRA-RICH

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. maritime administration has agreed to sell the mothballed superliner S.S. United States for $13 million to a group planning to turn the ship into a luxury floating condominium.

The sale of the ship, which holds the trans-Atlantic crossing record and now lies sealed and rusting alongside an unused pier in Norfolk, Va., is contingent upon the group's depositing $100,000 with the administration by next Thursday and paying the balance in full within 90 days.

The group, W. W. Ventures of Locust Grove, Va., plans to turn the 23-year-old ship, which was built in 1952 at a cost of $79.5 million, into a floating vacation home for the "ultra-rich," according to a spokesman.

Under the plan, 282 apartments would be sold, with the prices ranging from $650,000 for a single room to $2.5 million for an eight-room suite, according to the spokesman.

The conversion would take two years and cost $20 million.

The ship has not sailed since November, 1969, when she was abruptly withdrawn from service.

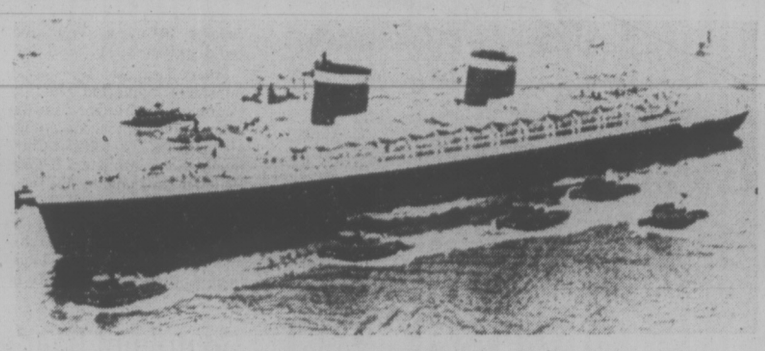
The ship's former owners, United States Lines of New York, said that during her last eight years at sea the 53,000-ton liner — which could travel at close to 50 m.p.h. — lost close to $28 million.

Altogether, over the 18 years in service, the ship received $118 million in federal subsidies just to keep her operational.

The ship is 990 feet long, and her 12 decks could accommodate 2,000 passengers and 1,000 crew members.

Since she was purchased by the Maritime Administration for about $12 million the government has tried three times to sell her.

Groups or individuals making acceptable bids in the past have failed to meet deadlines for making the $100,000 deposit.



Liner United States in her heyday

Now the ship lies guarded by only a single watchman, who never ventures more than a dozen feet into her hold.

Paint peeling from the ceilings of walkways hangs in long strips, while her once-mighty turbine engines, which generated 250,000 horsepower, are filled with solidified grease to preserve them.

One former engineer said he feared her massive propeller shafts may now be bent beyond repair, because their weight has not been shifted for two years.

That could have been accomplished by firing up the engine and rotating the shafts periodically, he said.

Four Oppose Thatcher

Times News Services

LONDON — The battle for leadership of Britain's troubled Conservative party exploded into a confused free-for-all today with five contestants in the running to succeed Edward Heath.

Nominations for next Tuesday's second round of balloting among 276 Conservative members of Parliament closed today with four men and a woman as announced candidates for the job.

The Party Wednesday wheeled some of its biggest guns into action to stop Mrs. Margaret Thatcher's leadership bid following her upset plurality win over Heath in the first round of balloting Tuesday.

The three new entrants are James Prior, one-time agriculture minister and leader of the Commons; Sir Geoffrey Howe, former solicitor-general and consumer minister; and John Peyton, a former transport minster.

By what is obviously no coincidence, they are neatly positioned to cut down Mrs. Thatcher's support.

Island Among 11 Sites Studied for Steel Mill

Canadian Press

At least 11 sites throughout B.C. including two near a major salmon and steelhead river on Vancouver Island are being considered for steel mills, the Vancouver Sun said Wednesday.

Roberts Bank, the lower mainland's superport, might be added to the list of possible sites, the story said.

The Japanese company which is conducting the steel mill study with the provincial government—Nippon Kohan Kaisha — is believed to favor Roberts Bank because of its mild climate and its proximity to a large population base.

The Sun says several staff members of Environment Canada, who confirmed the list of sites, are concerned that the public seems to be largely unaware of the enormous impact the mill will make on the province's environment and economy.

They said it will cover up to 3,000 acres, employ between 5,000 and 7,000 workers and use six million tons of coal and vast quantities of fresh water, iron ore and lime to enable it to produce a projected four million metric tons of steel a year.

The 11 sites the Sun says are being considered now are:

Three at Prince Rupert — Ridley-Kaien Islands, Digby Island and Port Simpson; one at Kitimat, northwest of the townsite; two near the Big Qualicum River, at Bowser and Dunsmuir; and five near Fort St. John—one at Taylor Flats, two on the Pine River and two on Jackfish Lake.

Building the steel mill on the Big Qualicum would be totally unacceptable from an environmental standpoint, the past president of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists said today.

"I have sufficient faith in this government that it won't be built either on the Big Qualicum or at Roberts' Bank," said Elton Anderson.

Air pollution, from sulfur dioxide released in the coal-burning process in steel milling would be the most serious effect of the mill, Anderson said.

"I also understand that steel mills require a hell of a lot of water," he said.

And the water in the Big Qualicum is already committed to the fishing industry, he said.

Anderson said Kitimat or some place in northern B.C. would be a more suitable site for a mill.

Roderick Haig-Brown, conservationist and an authority on salmon, said the possibility of establishing a mill at Bowser is remote.

"I don't think the government is considering establishing a mill on the island or at Roberts Bank," he said. "I think the sites being considered are Prince Rupert, Kitimat or the Peace River."

"Of course, to establish a mill either at Qualicum or

Wood Shipments Dip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Preliminary figures from the B.C. Forest Service show the province's lumber industry shipped 8.5 billion board feet of lumber in 1974, down substantially from the 10.3 billion feet shipped in 1973. Statistics Canada reports that the total of lumber and ties shipped from all B.C. mills for the first 10 months of 1974 was 7.33 billion feet, compared with 7.95 billion feet in the same period in 1973.

OPEC Turns Tables

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign oil producers have invested $11 billion of their escalating oil earnings in the United States, mostly in government bonds and bank deposits, U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon said Wednesday. Simon said the 13 OPEC nations received about $90 billion from their oil sales — four times what they earned in 1973.

Clashes Kill 1,000

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Ethiopian government reinforcements smashed through Eritrean rebel ambushes today to reach the encircled garrison of Asmara in the seventh day of fighting reported to have killed 1,000 persons.

Syncrude May Need More

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government will not go much above $300 million in funds for the Syncrude oil sands, Treasury Board president Jean Chretien told the House of Commons Tuesday.

But he did admit, under pressure from New Democratic Party questioning, that the government is bound to contribute 15 per cent of development costs, even if that figure did exceed $300 million.

And Alberta and Ontario, committed to 10 and five per cent of the costs respectively, could also have to pay more than the $200 million and $100 million reported earlier.

Costs of the northeastern Alberta development already have doubled once.

Any major cost change would mean "all the parties involved will have to sit down and review the situation," said Chretien. If there were a five or 10-per-cent increase, "some parties will have a hell of a problem and we will be among them."

Chretien said he doubts the project will cost more than the estimated $2 billion. A deal announced Tuesday brought the federal, Alberta and Ontario governments into the project with shares of 15, 10 and five per cent, respectively.

TOURIST SPENDING UP 15% IN PROVINCE

Tourists spent $759 million in British Columbia last year, an increase of 15 per cent over 1973.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said the increase was "gratifying" in a year when inflation and energy problems had a harmful effect on the number of U.S. citizens visiting all parts of Canada.

While the number of U.S. visitors to B.C. stayed relatively constant, visitors from other parts of Canada increased about 10 per cent, he said, and visitors from overseas increased by 30 per cent over 1973.

"The over-all 15 per cent increase is particularly beneficial to the province when one considers that more British Columbians than ever spent their vacations at home," said Hall.

"As a result our travel account with other areas of Canada and other countries is very much in the black."

Room sales were up about nine per cent over 1973 and restaurants receipts increased by about 12 per cent.

Tourism is B.C.'s third largest industry.

Heavy Quake Damage

HONG KONG (UPI) — An earthquake in one of China's most heavily industrialized areas apparently has caused extensive damage, reports from Peking indicated today.

175 BUSES FOR TENDER

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said Wednesday 59 thirty-five-foot diesel city buses, 26 forty-foot fast-buses, 30 forty-foot urban diesel buses, 20 electric trolley buses and 40 articulated trolleybuses will be bought.

Most of the new buses will be used in the Victoria and Vancouver areas but 35 diesels will be used for new transit services in Interior cities.

The vehicles will likely not be delivered until the end of 1975, said Lorimer.

Because of the "impressive design features" of European buses tested last year, said Lorimer, offshore suppliers will be invited to bid on the current order.

U.S. Airmen Aiding Thieu

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. airmen are helping the South Vietnamese air force reorganize a supply system for critical spare parts that has deteriorated in the two years since GIs left.

U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a way around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C141 transport jet flies the men in their green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out.

"Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese air force) straighten itself out."

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement," one source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen underlines the South Vietnamese dependence on U.S. military supplies and technical help.

The United States provides all of South Vietnam's military needs, from items that cost thousands of dollars to 35-cent washers needed to keep helicopters flying.

Recent figures showed the economically strapped Saigon government had about $175 million of its own, far from enough to finance a war.

RETIREMENT IS EXPENSIVE

Group Studying Plan for Long Beach

PORT ALBERNI — Federal parks officials and members of the Alberni-Clayoquot regional board Wednesday agreed to set up a five-man committee to prepare a "massive development" plan for the area surrounding Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach.

George McNight, chairman of the regional board, said the committee would study water, sewage and garbage services for the unorganized area, including the villages of Tofino and Ucluelet.

The plan would be submitted to the federal government with a request for funds to implement the plan and to pay for the installation of services, he said.

"If we are to cope with the thousands of visitors who come to Long Beach we have to provide them with accommodations and essential services," he said. "The villages have not the means to provide the services."

The meeting was attended by senior park officials, including William Turnbull of Calgary, of the western region of Parks Canada, and Jack Holyroyd, superintendent of Pacific Rim National Park.

McNight said the meeting was a success.

He said the committee would look into the possibility of establishing a single water supply system to serve the park, the unorganized area, Tofino and Ucluelet.

"During the summer months Tofino is hard pressed for water due to the large number of visitors," he said.

McKnight also said the regional district would study the matter of imposing stricter land-use controls for the unorganized area surrounding the park to stop the growth of ribbon and fringe development.

He said the regional district last weekend submitted the same proposal for a development plan to a Liberal caucus held in Alberni, but the delegates did not seem to understand the problems facing the national park, Tofino and Ucluelet.

"It is a real problem," he added. "If eventually the area is visited by one million people, we must do something to provide people with essential services."

1½% Charge For Overdue Phone Bills

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission has approved B.C. Tel's request for a 1½-per-cent monthly charge on overdue accounts.

Colin Patterson of B.C. Tel said Wednesday the charge will be effective March 15. He said bills amounting to $10 or less would be exempt.

Patterson said the cost of carrying and collecting overdue accounts has risen rapidly, forcing the company to ask for the charge. He said the company's present unpaid balance averaged about $10 million for each month of 1974.

Americans Borrowing Less And Paying Back Faster

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. consumers, worried about losing their jobs, are paying off their debts at a record rate.

The federal reserve board said Wednesday Consumer borrowing in the U.S. fell by a record $877 million in December.

"It's a typical recession response," said Richard Clay, an economist specializing in debt at Morgan Guaranty in New York.

"People are very concerned about the state of their personal finances and want to get monthly payments down in anticipation of a higher rate of unemployment and lower personal income."

The December decline in outstanding installment and non-installment credit followed a $402 million drop in November.

It was the first time total consumer credit has fallen two straight months since May and June, 1958.

President Ford, meanwhile, summoned his top economic advisers to the White House for strategy talks today as his disputes with the heavily Democratic Congress mounted.

Among the disputes were food stamps for the poor, military aid for turkey and the first step in Ford's energy-economy program — a tariff on imported oil.

Among those conferring with Ford were Treasury Secretary William Simon, economic counselor William Seidman, chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb.

The House of Representatives shot another hole in Ford's economy and energy plans Wednesday, voting 309 to 114 to rescind the oil-import-fee increase he announced last month to drive up fuel prices and drive down consumption.

The president was deserted on the vote by nearly a third of House Republicans — and the margin was well beyond the two-thirds needed to override a veto.

The legislation now goes to the Senate, where a majority of 53 members has already gone on record against the plan. A test vote could come sometime next week.

The Senate joined the House Wednesday in casting an overwhelming vote to block a Ford plan to increase the cost of food stamps to the poor on March 1.

Priceless Art Stolen

URBINO, Italy (UPI) — Thieves climbed into the ducal palace of Urbino today and made away with three renaissance paintings an art expert described as "masterpieces among masterpieces."

Police said a portrait by Raphael known as The Mute Woman and two works by Piero della Francesca — the Flagellation and Madonna of Senigallia — were taken.

RIOTS, LOOTING FOLLOW POLICE STRIKE IN PERU

Times News Services

LIMA — Troops fired on bands of young looters who roamed through the downtown streets of Lima today in the aftermath of a police strike that escalated into full-scale rioting.

There were no official reports of casualties. Unofficial counts of the dead in Wednesday's 16 hours of riots ranged up to at least 30.

In one 10-block downtown area looting was so extensive that iron bars had been bent, large plate glass windows shattered and office bills and receipts strewn about.

The government, meanwhile, today decreed a national holiday and residents were ordered to stay out of downtown.

A series of stern warnings, were issued prohibiting "any citizen to meet with any other," giving troops and police the right to search homes at will, and permitting arrests without judges' orders.

Strike 'Censorship' Probe Sought by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic Party MP called Wednesday for an investigation of allegations that broadcasters have censored new reports about a Vancouver radio station strike.

Stuart Leggatt (New Westminster) requested in the Commons that Labor Minister John Munro intervene in the strike at CKLG and that Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier investigate the censorship allegations.

The motion, referring to "allegations of censorship against the Canadian Association of Broadcasters CAB or their affiliates" did not receive the unanimous consent required for debate.

Outside the House, Leggatt said he erred in his reference to the CAB.

He should have referred to allegations against Broadcast News, a subsidiary of The Canadian Press, he said in an interview.

His information was based on reports published in Vancouver saying the news director of radio station CJOR had complained about Broadcast News handling of the strike story.

In an interview from Vancouver, Erin Swangard, CJOR news director, said he complained that voice reports fed Saturday to Broadcast News had been scrapped.

Don Covey, general manager of Broadcast News, said in Toronto the only item cut was a report which included union songs.

"We weren't going to carry union propaganda," he said, noting that Broadcast News carried voice reports by its own reporter later Saturday.

The only other problem with the CKLG situation was a delay of less than two hours in carrying a written storey on the Broadcast News wires.

That was necessary to check information in the story which later was carried, Covey said.

He added that there has been no communication between him and CAB officials over the strike.

Suggestions in Vancouver published reports that there was a possibility of collustion to censor news were erroneous, he said.

Lea, Hogarth Duncan Seminar Guest Speakers

It is a annual event on the topic of local government sponsored by the University of B.C.'s centre for continuing education and the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

Association president, Mayor Bill Moncrief of Cumberland will chair business sections of a meeting to accompany the seminar. A new president will be elected.

Complaint Leads To Clean Rifle

Saanich police investigated a complaint Wednesday night that a person was leaning out a window at 4231 Carey Rd. with a gun.

They found it was a youth cleaning his air rifle and no shots had been fired.

Anacortes Oil Spill

ANACORTES, Wash. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard said Wednesday it is monitoring the cleanup of an oil spill of up to 2,000 gallons that occurred at Texaco's loading dock here early Wednesday.

The coast guard says the cutter Point Richmond was in the right place at the right time when the crude oil was spilled. The coast guard says quick action on the part of the cutter using emergency booms kept the spill contained and away from shore while a private cleanup vessel was dispatched.

The coast guard said the oil was spilled when a tank overflowed as a Texaco tanker was unloading.

to ask Hydro for the change.

The city of Victoria, concerned about several fires that have broken out at its Esquimalt Road temporary garbage holding dump, has engaged security guards to patrol the helicopter landing pad 24 hours a day.

Meanwhile, at a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday, Walker charged the City of Victoria is "using" the senior citizens who attend the activity centre on Fisgard, against the union.

Walker said when the union decided to picket the oil outlet which serves Centennial Square buildings, including the activity centre, it offered to find alternate accommodation so the seniors would not miss out on their hot lunches.

"We found one place ourselves and the Salvation Army offered to help serve the lunches, but the city refused," Walker said. "They figured it would be better publicity to use the senior citizens against us."

City manager Jim Bramley said he had not heard officially about the CUPE offer, but Walker said he believed the offer had been made through Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons who is also the head of the Silver Threads centre.

Four out of eight jurisdictions in the regional bargaining group have locked out staffs. Two more — Esquimalt and Sidney — are expected to be added Monday, leaving one body, Greater Victoria Public Library still in the process of mediation for which a meeting is set for Feb. 17.

The eighth body, Greater Victoria School District, is exempt from the lockout pact made between jurisdictions, and its janitor employees say they do not intend to strike even though they are in a legal position to do so.

Developer Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. land developers have asked the provincial cabinet to establish an appeal board with the power to overrule land development decisions made by municipalities. In a brief to the cabinet's committee on housing, transportation and urban development, the Urban Development Institute said that at present municipalities can frustrate legitimate development proposals put before them.

ISLAND STEEL MILL?

Roberts Bank would be wrong," he added.

Last June, Gary Lauk, B.C economic development minister, announced that a three-phase study on the feasibility of an integrated steel mill would be undertaken jointly by the government and NKK.

The first phase of the study — an investigation of possible sites — is due to be completed Feb. 15. The second phase — detailed economic, social and environmental studies — is scheduled for completion June 30 and the third phase, the final report, is set for Oct. 31.

Lauk said he "didn't deal in speculation or rumor" and would only confirm the feasibility study is continuing.

The first phase should be completed this month, he said, but no announcement will be made concerning its findings until the final report is completed late this year.

"I'm not even aware how many sites are being looked at," said Lauk, when asked why the study group would even consider an area such as the Big Qualicum river.

He said, however, modern steel mills are clean operations, cleaner "than even the smallest pulp mill."

The last phase of the study will involve more detailed analysis of the economic, environmental and social impact of a mill.

Community News Roundup

James Bay residents will have a chance to become fully informed on the goals and workings of a resource board for their community.

On Saturday at 2:30 in the Newcombe Auditorium, JAMES BAY COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION members and staff will be on hand to explain and to answer questions.

A task force of 15 people will be formed to arrange for resource board elections scheduled for May 24.

The proposed board will concern itself with all health and human resources programs in the area.

"At least it's another step closer" to the DOWNTOWN BLANSHARD group getting their long-hoped-for community centre.

Negotiations for the Winifred Clarke workshop operated by the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded have been going on for more than six months between the association and a committee of a federal, provincial and city officials.

Lou Jordison, community worker in the Downtown Blanshard area said today assessors from CMHC look at the building this week.

"At least it's a step forward" although negotiations are still a long way from completion.

There will be a meeting tonight at 7:30 of the Blanshard tenants. The meeting will be held in Apt. 2, 2505 Blanshard, and general business is on the agenda.

Foster homes, especially for teenagers and family groups of two or more children (any age) are needed.

Toward this goal the department of human resources is holding an informative session Wednesday, Feb. 12, at 7:30 in the Junction Centre Building, 1627 Fort St.

A discussion on FOSTERING and a film will be shown by social workers Donna Gaw and Allistair Mont.

Further information may be had by calling Mrs. K. Dunn at 598-5121.

The department says foster children need homes where they are not only loved but where their loyalties to their own family are accepted; where their confused feelings are understood and where they will have maximum opportunities for growth and personality development.

There is still time to volunteer to help count ballots at the annual meeting Feb. 27 of the JAMES BAY NEW HORIZONS.

The club is also looking for a volunteer to serve as a member of the task force being formed to conduct elections for the James Bay Resource Board.

The resource board committee will be formed at a meeting Saturday at 2:30 in the Newcombe auditorium.

A work crew came out Wednesday to stuff envelopes on the notice of the annual meeting, listing the nominees seeking board positions.

Saturdays are now music days at the club's drop-in centre at 521 Superior Street. There is singing and dancing under the leadership of convenor Pat Groves.

Under future meetings, on Wednesday, Feb. 26, the first of meetings with a nutrition consultant. Topics to be discussed will be diet and weight control and diabetes.

This Friday at the regular forum meeting at 10 a.m. in the James Bay United Church hall, representatives from the government and the community will answer questions concerning the resource board.

What's happening in your community?

The community news page appears every Thursday and is available to any community-related, non-profit public groups.

Send or bring in your notices and reports of meetings to the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas, or telephone 382-3131 and ask for "community news."

Other officers are Harvey Mossop, first vice-president; Fred McEvay, second vice; Bill Young, secretary; Dave Campbell, treasurer; Ed Copeland, tail twister; Reg Thomas, lion tamer; Harry Hoskin and Len Treloar, one year directors; and Ed Marshall and Rip Kirby, two-year directors.

The club will meet the first and third Wednesday at Playland Curling Club at 7 p.m. for dinner.

The club will fill a void in the Royal Oak area and hopes to get involved in community work and be ready with a helping hand.

Because of the work of a group of enthusiastic parents FERNWOOD PLAY SCHOOL is now operating, serving the Fernwood-Jubilee areas.

So far 18 parents have banded together to develop the school at 7831 Fern, in the Friends Meeting Hall.

This is parent-owned and operated and there is still room for more families to participate. Mothers donate about one day of their time a month and the children attend the play school for two-and-a-half hour sessions three times a week.

It started when the mothers could not get their three- and four-year-old children into already existing play schools in the city. Coral Loy was the spark behind the move and is president of the group.

For openings in the current term — which runs to the end of the school year — parents may call Fran Cross, 386-1019, or Valerie Wilson at 477-0877.

There is an urgent need for outdoor equipment and anyone wishing to donate small bicycles, wagons or ride-em toys give Sharon Henderson a call at 386-7387.

About $80 was raised at the VICTORIA BOYS' CLUB penny carnival night last week with the money helping to send the floor hockey team to Vancouver.

Jack Thornburgh of the club says about 175 people turned out and a highlight was the dunk tank — not only were people being dunked but the tank sprung a leak at the bottom and the bucket and mop brigade were called out to sop things up.

In the near future is renovations to the gymn. Thornburgh says new equipment will be installed partly through funds from the club and partly from a service club.

The club has embarked on a membership drive with club officials going out to the schools to explain club programs.

There are more than 250 children — about 30 per cent of them girls — using the facilities now. As well, two neighborhood associations — Vic West and Newton Gardens — are using the club on Wednesday and Friday nights.

Special nights have been set up with juniors — only (8 to 12) on Tuesdays and senior teenagers (13 to 17) on Thursdays.

A National Tragedy

It is difficult to find words that adequately describe Ottawa's sell-out to the international oil companies in the Athabaska tar sands Syncrude project. Inept, stupid, subservient, come to mind but fail to define the magnitude of this horrendous error in judgment on the part of the federal government.

Perhaps the writing was on the wall last week when Energy Minister Donald Macdonald was reported to be hovering around his phone waiting to see if the American petroleum companies would condescend to stay in the Syncrude project. The government of the sovereign state of Canada waiting on oil companies; it should have been the other way around.

It was ever thus, as we read the details of the final agreement. Ottawa will initially invest $300 million in the project, Alberta $200 million and Ontario $100 million. In addition the private consortium of Imperial Oil Ltd., Gulf Canada Ltd. and Canada-Cities Service Ltd. will invest another $400 million in the scheme, one half of which will be financed by a $200 million loan from the Alberta government. Total outlay of the private companies comes to $700 million — the consortium claims it has already invested $500 million in the project. Total outlay from the public purse, including the Alberta loan: $800 million. Nearly one billion dollars of taxpayer money and what does the public get for it — a 30 per cent interest in the project. For a total of $700 million — only $200 million of which is new investment — the oil companies receive a 70 per cent interest in the project.

It doesn't take a genius to see that for more than 50 per cent of the financing we are getting only a 30 per cent share in our birthright. Alberta could pick up another 30 per cent interest — giving the Canadian people a 60 per cent majority — through loan debentures and an option to buy 20 per cent of the plant when it is in operation. But as it stands the Canadian people are receiving the short end of an oily stick.

Yet financing foreign oil companies with taxpayers' money is only the beginning. Tooth and nail the federal government fought the provinces on resource taxation clauses in the budget, but Syncrude companies appear to dictate their own rules to Ottawa. Oil produced from the first 125,000-barrel-per-day plant will be sold at world prices (currently $11.50 per barrel) rather than the domestic price set at $6.50 per barrel. The government has also promised in writing that the oil companies won't have to pay taxes on royalties collected by Alberta while other petroleum companies not involved in Syncrude will, a measure which makes Ottawa's contentious budget taxation proposals discriminatory and patently unfair.

If market demand declines, no limits will be imposed on Syncrude's production. Such an exemption from pro-rating suggests that Syncrude oil may be exported, despite the government ban on oil exports after 1982 — a nice carrot to dangle in front of energy hungry American companies. And finally, if the project exceeds its nearly doubled $2 billion cost, the public purse will pay its share. In fact, Ottawa now admits it will bear 15 per cent of the total project cost, whatever that eventually comes to in dollar terms.

So there it is, a virtual sellout to the oil industry which in the short term negates Ottawa's hard-fought resource taxation proposals, and in the long term puts Canada's potential petroleum self-sufficiency into foreign hands. It was the National Research Council in conjunction with its Alberta counterpart that developed the techniques Syncrude will employ. Public money developed the processes, yet it is the oil companies that will benefit from the technology. Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. is already producing more than 50,000 barrels per day at $6.50 per barrel from the sands while the Syncrude companies will receive $11.50 per barrel for the same oil. Not only will Canadian taxpayers fund the project, we will pay higher prices for its products too.

This terrible deal sets the pattern for the future development of the tar sands. Similar concessions will have to be granted to other companies in the future. With estimated reserves totalling more than 300 billion barrels — equal to or more than Middle East reserves — the sands were Canada's ticket to economic prosperity and petroleum self sufficiency to the turn of the century. If Ottawa and the provinces had funded the project themselves, Canadians might have had a plentiful supply of cheap oil for decades. Once again our economic independence has been sold down the river by our own government. We can still partially redeem this national tragedy if Ottawa and Alberta can work out an agreement to exercise their options so the Canadian people will at least control 60 per cent of what is rightfully 100 per cent theirs. But in this instance the federal government has made such a deep bow in the face of foreign oil companies, it is doubtful if it can straighten its back for even this minor redemption.

February Bacchanal

Word that the federal government will consider legislating a national holiday in February is about the only joyful thing to emanate from Ottawa in recent months. At present, Canada has eight statutory holidays and while a few Scrooges consider that too many a good case can be made for a mid-winter holiday in our northern clime. From Christmas to Easter is a long haul encompassing the two most dreary months and nary a break. Most Canadians go to work in the dark of January and February and return home in the same stygian gloom. It is a time of vague restlessness, boredom and a yearning for the colors of spring. No holiday can change the terms of our physical existence but at least it would provide a focal point, a festive day to regale winter or just shut ourselves up in front of a roaring fire with a rum toddy. As to the suggested name Heritage Day — why do we have to justify the holiday with a name and ponderous ceremonies conducted in hundreds of towns? Canadian winters in themselves are justification enough for a roistering Bacchanal.

Report Doubts Shirker Theory

TORONTO — One of the curious paradoxes of the Canadian labor market in the last few years, especially in this province, has been the phenomena of high unemployment rates while job opportunities go begging.

It has, of course, been a paradox with highly political implications, in that it invites the conclusion that work is available for anyone who wants it and those who don't are job-dodgers sustained by unemployment insurance benefits.

It is not, however, a conclusion supported by a research study by the Ontario ministry of labor. In a paper entitled The Paradox of Unemployment and Job Vacancies — Some Theories Confronted by Data, the ministry's research branch found little evidence and much against, the theory that laziness and unemployment insurance explain the co-existence of unemployment and manpower shortages.

This is not, it may be noted, a finding likely to please the Ontario government in a political sense. Various Ontario cabinet ministers have indicated on diverse occasions they share the widespread view that being unemployed is largely a rip-off operation, performed usually by the young and long-haired. They'll get no help from this report.

The researchers concentrated on the labor market as it existed in Ontario up to the middle of last year, and they are careful to note that the economic downturn of the last few months has produced a very tight market in which job vacancies are not nearly as numerous as previously. However, the report points out that the paradox of high unemployment and labor shortage is likely to reappear when the economy picks up again unless there are some fundamental "structural" changes in the labor market.

Thus one would expect, if the paradox were simply a case of unwillingness to work, to find some statistical evidence that an increasing proportion of persons referred by the Canada Manpower Centres to prospective employers were simply token appearances made for the purpose of continuing to qualify for unemployment insurance.

However, no such evidence was found. Indeed, it was found that in first quarter of 1974, when the federal government was cracking down on unemployment insurance claimants and unemployment was on the rise, that the increase in referrals was very small compared to the long-term trend and much below what one would expect if large-scale job-dodging was afoot.

What they did find, for every year going back to 1969, was a dramatic increase in the rate of rejection by employers of persons referred to them by Canada Manpower Centres. In 1969, 45.2 per cent of referrals were hired; by the first quarter of 1974, this ratio had fallen to 29.3 per cent, even though the employers were listed with Canada Manpower as needing workers.

"We are left with the conclusion," the report states, "that most of the people who are now unemployed are not regarded by employers as worth hiring, in spite of what many claim is a desperate vacancy situation."

The manpower data currently available are not sufficiently sophisticated to pinpoint the causes of this, but they do suggest some probable explanations.

Generally speaking, for example, one finds that the unsatisfied demand for workers is highest in the higher-skilled occupations. One also finds that unemployment is unduly concentrated in workers under 25 years of age. From this it seems likely that younger persons without skills and-or experience are the ones having most difficulty in finding work.

Just so, it may be said, but the question arises: how did this come about and what can be done about it?

The report suggests the cause lies in the very low rates of growth in Canadian industry, particularly in the manufacturing sector, between 1967 and 1972. It is doubtful if adequate training or experience was provided during this period for the expansion needs of 1973 and 1974. The manpower "pipeline" was broken and, once broken, cannot be repaired overnight.

The difficulty is that employers and social planners — which presumably includes governments — are reluctant to treat labor as a resource which has to be developed and planned over the long term. Instead it is regarded as a tap to be turned off and on in response to immediate economic conditions, with unemployment insurance as a sop.

Heroic Board

During the past few weeks many letters have appeared in the press, complaining of the symphony management and its supposed shortcomings. I am by no means a symphony buff and do not attend the concerts, but have followed the press reports and the fact that Lazlo Gati called for a meeting of the board in which to air his complaints. So he had his choice, according to your paper, last Tuesday, Jan. 28, and didn't attend. What's his problem? Is he now uncomfortable about facing the board after all the turmoil that's been stirred up by his friends? He should be ashamed of himself in condoning, by his actions, the public slinging of darts and brickbats by what appears to be the elite, at what after all are hardworking, dedicated volunteers.

By acting with dignity, carrying out their duties responsibly and refusing to be sucked in by the mud hurled at them the board of directors have proved their mettle. They, in fact, are the heroes in this controversy. — M. E. Jenkin, 249 Heddle Avenue.

Commonsense

It is not easy to resist the pressure of fellow employees and members of one's union, and I think Jack Hilliard at city hall had real courage when he aired views re wage and salary settlements now under way in the city.

I have long held, and Mr. Hilliard expressed my belief, that strikes are a clear indication of incompetence and lack of common sense in many (not all) cases. Why can't negotiators on both sides of the table be honest and fair? If accurate figures could be produced, why not agree that the actual cost of living increase be paid, plus a little for an actual improvement in the standard of living which all are entitled to in a prosperous era. If production is maintained or increased all should share in the increased production. If honest men, not connected with the negotiations, could honestly measure the increased cost of living and also of production and honestly report to the bargaining table, surely this is a much better method than costly strikes which often hurt those most who can have no real say in the negotiations.

It is time someone spoke up for reason and common sense and I take off my hat to Jack Hilliard for doing so.—M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra Street.

Resume Negotiations

I feel I must record my disgust with the attitude of Mayor Peter Pollen and some members of city council towards the current CUPE strike.

I pay my taxes in the expectation that certain services will be performed. The mayor has stated publicly that with city employees on strike and-or locked out we will be saving money. It appears to me to be most unrealistic and false economy. We, the taxpayers have paid for certain services and are not getting them. How can this possibly be interpreted as saving money?

CUPE PICKETS
... back to bargaining

As the strike continues it is obvious the economy in Victoria will be seriously affected. Mr. Pollen's daily saving of our money will cost other citizens, like those in the construction industry, many more thousands.

I hope Mr. Pollen and other members of city council will soon see the absurdity of their actions and make every attempt to resume negotiations. — D. Macnair, Victoria.

Lockout Irresponsible

While not denying the basic truth of Mr. Hilliard's argument—the right that we, in Canada, have to apply for work elsewhere—(Times, Jan. 27) might I, as a member of the same CUPE Local as Mr. Hilliard, point out that another right is also in jeopardy, that of being permitted to continue working in the job of one's choice and to which one has been confirmed as a permanent (hence, satisfactory) employee. I, personally, take exception to being classed as greedy because I wish to exercise the right which "luckily we still enjoy in Canada" of continuing to work while the union negotiates for the benefit of present and, ultimately, those future employees who are exercising the right Mr. Hilliard places in such esteem—that of changing jobs.

I am appalled that a few irresponsible politicians (with whom I too have always been dealt with fairly until now) obviously care so little for the convenience of the public they are supposed to serve, that they contemplate a lock-out when their employees are negotiating in good faith and are willing to work.—Valerie McWilliams, 849 McCaskill Street.

Housework Myth

Judging from the quotations of Sigrid Kjelson in his column of Jan. 30, it seems that columnist Jack Scott has missed her point, although I would love to see the original article to get the full context.

From what I can gather, Ms. Kjelson wrote in the Greater Victoria Environmental Centre newsletter that women have unfortunately been taught (and are still being taught by commercials, among other things) that they are responsible for banishing all the dirt in their houses, to the detriment of developing their other abilities. Obviously this is an oversimplification of the meaning of housework and its relation to women's talents, but I see her point as being emphatically positive, not negative.

Let's be logical. If a woman believes that housework is the sort of work that no one should be required to do (or to feel responsible for) simply on account of gender, she is too often made to feel guilty for not acquiescing to society. Unreasonable guilt like that is what makes so many women apologize to unexpected guests for the state of the house, even though none of the dirt or clutter is actually their faults. The point is positive. Women, just like men, are able to set their own personal and professional goals. Ridiculous biological assumptions should not be thrown in their way.

Lest Mr. Scott therefore assume that I deplore a clean house (a conclusion which follows a circuitous course, at best), read this it is a myth that a clean-oriented housewife and a woman libber (sic.) are opposites. (No one assumes that a married handyman can't be productive in other areas of his life.)

Despite media flights of fancy, a liberated woman is no more a type than any man is automatically a type. There's the point — if people are simply people, no one need feel guilty, regardless of who cleans the house, and how well. That's why women's liberation in no way puts down homemaking. Three cheers for individualism, including that of productive housewives and househusbands! — Connie More, 32 Paddon Avenue.

Medical Union

Your editorial Doctors Want Closed Shop was most opportune. However, I have been pounding the subjeca of doctors being sent into outlying areas, where they are desperately needed and I have written to the ministers of health both in the Socred and our present government.

In a country in Latin America where I lived for eight years, graduates from medical school were obliged to spend three years in towns of less than 5,000 inhabitants before they were permitted to practise in large cities. I have suggested this course to the ministers of health and in addition I have recommended that foreign doctors who come to B.C. of their own volition should also be subject to this procedure.

However, the medical association, which is the strongest union in Canada, obviously has objected to this suggestion as no action has been taken. Possibly they feel that an ordinary layman should not be permitted to make recommendations.

We had the recent case of the two doctors in Ashcroft closing their office and this meant that sick cases had to be taken to Lytton or Kamloops. This is most unsatisfactory. I also suggested to the ministers of health that accommodation and clinics should be provided in these outlying areas as it would be unreasonable to expect a doctor to supply such items for a limited period. However, the interior is still very short of doctors and dentists who, of course, flock to the large cities. Surely the objective of both doctors and dentists should be to supply adequate services to all instead of enriching themselves in the cities. However, as I said, the medical union is extremely powerful.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Legislative Action

The federal government has instituted a half-million dollar advertising campaign which is supposed to promote equality in International Women's Year.

One of the radio advertisements tells of the "power" inherent in the role of housewife: A housewife has the vote, she has power to affect her children, and she can consume. Therefore a woman can feel proud of being a housewife, according to the ad.

But the time has come to pay something more tangible than lip-service to homemakers. For instance, those who take on the important work of nurturing children deserve some means of obtaining independent economic security in return for their labor. For instance, the concept of the paid work force could be expanded to include work in the home. Perhaps the family allowance cheque can be seen as a small beginning in this direction. Each spouse should be formally entitled to 50 per cent of the total family income, and if halving the income meant that each partner received less than a minimum wage, the difference could be made up with a guaranteed income plan. When will recommendation 135 of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women report find implementation? This is the recommendation that a guaranteed annual income be paid by the federal government to the heads of all one-parent families with dependent children. Women still need more alternatives for securing economic independence in meaningful work outside the home without neglect of children as well as tangible rewards for home-making. Lip service to motherhood is not enough.

Only a little over a third of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women's 1968 recommendations have been implemented. Why can't the federal government produce some real legislative action for women instead of this offensive advertising campaign (which representatives of Women's Groups from across Canada formally protested to the government as early as October, 1974). — Carolyn Folse, For Status of Women Action Group, Victoria.

From the Times of February 6, 1915

One hundred and one jitney car drivers and owners formed themselves into an association last evening to counter claims that their method of transportation was unsafe. They adopted a resolution pointing out that many persons formerly unemployed were deriving their living from driving automobiles and soliciting the public in riding from various parts of Victoria to other areas. The organization decided against allowing passengers to ride on the running boards of automobiles and also voted to work closely with the authorities in enforcing traffic ordinances.

Smoke billows after collision of two tankers in Irish Sea

THERE'S NO OIL SHORTAGE IN SEAS

By GEOFFREY STEVENS
The Globe and Mail

The world's oceans are suffering from too much oil, not too little. And nobody yet knows at what point the damage could become irreversible; it could be years hence, or it could be happening right now.

The United States National Research Council has reported that something more than six million metric tons of petroleum hydrocarbons find their way into the world's oceans each year. Perhaps around 20 per cent of this may be accounted for by atmospheric fallout and natural seepage; but the greater part comes from human activities.

About 35 per cent is dumped by the world's transportation systems, by tankers, during dry docking and terminal operations, in accidents, when ships clean out their bilges. Around 31 per cent is contributed by rivers, particularly those carrying urban runoff. Coastal refineries, municipal and industrial waste add 13 per cent and offshore oil production something over 1 per cent. As the use of oil increases the amount that finds its way annually into the oceans can be expected to be greater, and because petroleum hydrocarbons may under certain circumstances persist for years or even decades before being rendered harmless by natural processes, the problem is cumulative.

That oil spills destroy sea life and human enjoyment of beaches is already common knowledge. Canadians know what the Arrow spill did to a part of our Eastern coast in 1970. They have been told about the "black holes" in Resolute Bay, which are filled with oil—apparently from spills—and where no sea life long survives. They have been told about the tar lumps found in the open sea, found even in the Pacific, which had earlier been thought to be clean.

The U.S. council's report suggests that the pollution will increase "in spite of current interest and activity in control measures" although it could be reduced, but this would be "heavily dependent on a much wider adoption of known control measures by all countries."

Only international action can keep the oceans clean, but international action will not be taken unless individual nations provide the impetus by setting and requiring a good example. Canada, for instance, will protect none of its coasts by preaching. But Canada could have set a good example in Saglek, Newfoundland, and failed to do so. Last August carelessness allowed 500,000 gallons of diesel oil to spill onto the land and seep into the sea. Last month, the lesson quite unlearned, between 16,000 and 33,000 gallons were allowed to spill.

Other nations are as careless or more careless.

The United States has been disputing internally about the standards required for tankers plying between U.S. ports. Environmentalists hold that such tankers should have double bottoms, which could cut spills by damaged tankers by as much as 90 per cent, and segregated tanks to carry seawater ballast for use when the tanker is on its empty return trip. They also hold that the residue from crude oil, which can coat a tanker's bottom and sides to a depth of as much as a foot, should not be swilled out into the sea, but taken back to land and reprocessed.

Some tankers are being built to meet these standards. But the transportation and oil industries contend that double bottoms and segregated tanks increase the cost of a tanker, and that the crude oil residue displace oil-carrying capacity.

These are very short-sighted views, even of the economics of the situation. The world's supplies of oil—all politics aside—are so limited that their end is projected, by some geologists, to come within the lifetimes of people now living. We cannot afford the oil lost in spills, or the energy-rich residue steamed out of tankers to damage the oceans, even if we could afford the damage to the oceans themselves.

Common sense would dictate the taking of known precautions, but common sense seems too often to come into play only after repeated disaster. Will Japan, for instance, feel more inclined to pollution controls after its $20-million (price tag still rising) refinery spill in December? How many oil-saturated coastlines would it take to convince the Western industrial nations that they should agree together to accept no oil that was not delivered by tankers meeting all pollution-control standards?

As for Canada, we could take steps to end the carelessness which now spills oil into the oceans from our coasts. And we could ensure that we are capable of handling other people's spills off our coasts.

As Captain H. R. Tilley, director of maritime operations and planning for the Defence Department, pointed out last November, Maritime Command was able to handle its share of the Arrow oil spill in 1970. But since 1970, Maritime Command had been cut by 1,000 men, six ships and 19 aircraft. And we can expect much bigger and worse spills.

The IRA Bombers Are Losing Power to Influence Events

By BERNARD NOSSITER

British soldier faces Belfast rioters over barbed wire

LONDON — The air has been full of cease-fire talks from the Irish Republican Army but the streets have been full of exploding bombs. The gap between words and deeds, an abiding feature of Irish affairs, has rarely seemed wider.

The spasm of explosions the other day — five in London, three in Londonderry and one in Manchester — are noisy proof, if any were needed, that the Provisional IRA is still capable of inflicting pain. The assaults also demonstrate how hard it is for the Provisionals to lay down their arms.

Life on the run as an urban guerrilla is dangerous; it also has a glamor and attraction unmatched by peace. A cease-fire would reduce most of the IRA's men to a dull, drab existence in the mean row houses of Belfast and Londonderry. There they would face a grim choice — jobs as laborers, clerks or mill hands or a place in Ulster's lengthening dole queue.

The most thoughtful IRA leaders like Rory O'Brady talk bravely of their movement developing into a political power once the guns are stilled. The prospects, however, are not encouraging. In the days when the Provisionals were seen by Ulster Catholics as defenders of an embattled community, the IRA enjoyed a genuine and widespread support. But this has now been dissipated as every Ulster election underlines. Catholics have largely ignored IRA appeals to boycott the polls; candidates with IRA sympathies are swamped.

The IRA has correspondingly lost much of its power to influence events. Its greatest victory came nearly three years ago with the fall of the Stormont regime in Ulster. That was the end of a provincial government operated by and for the Protestant majority. Stormont preserved Protestant monopolies of the best jobs, public housing and the legal forces of order.

Today, it is almost unthinkable that so one-sided a rule can be recreated. Even the hardest-line Protestants now pay lip service to a bill of rights to protect the Catholic minority. The old ascendancy could be restored only if Britain suddenly cut the province loose and left a Protestant mini-state behind.

The IRA was once the cutting edge of a civil rights movement that mobilized the Catholic community. It demonstrated that the province would not be governed without the assent of the minority.

But today the IRA serves no such purpose. Its objective, to force Ulster into a union with the predominantly Catholic republic in the south, is as unthinkable as a return to exclusively Protestant rule in the north. Ulster is ungovernable without the consent of its majority, too.

The IRA pretends that its only enemy is Britain. It acts as if Ulster's one million Protestants did not exist or as if their deep-rooted suspicion of the Catholic republic would somehow evaporate when Britain goes. This is a special form of political blindness matched only by the terrorists' insistence that they still enjoy substantial Catholic support.

In the end, a united Ireland is an appealing and logical solution. But Ulster's key Catholic politicians, Gerry Fitt and John Hume, have won their leadership by insisting that unity can be achieved only with the uncoerced agreement of the province's population.

British public opinion and some high-placed figures in the government would welcome any excuse to cut loose from the wracked province and dissolve a connection that has haunted British politics for centuries. A withdrawal now, however, would probably bring to power the most uncompromising Protestant figures, William Craig, Reverend Ian Paisley and other spokesmen for the private Protestant armies. Ulster's Catholics would then find unity with the south only by leaving the province, a course many might be compelled to take at the end of a Protestant terrorist's gun.

But peace poses terrifying problems for the terrorists. Unlike the Palestinian Arabs, Algerian guerrillas and other forces with whom they are frequently and loosely compared, the Provisionals cannot emerge as the recognized representatives of the people in whose name they fight. In peace, the Provisionals are likely to sink back into the obscurity from which they escaped four years ago.

TIMES ARE TOUGH

The Exxon Corp. just can't seem to make ends meet, can it?

There was the chairman of the world's largest oil company announcing in New York that 1974 profits were $3.14 billion — not entirely by coincidence, almost identical to the U.S. trade deficit for the year.

But would it buy baby's shoes?

Not quite.

The best the man could muster was that "results such as these will help provide the funds required for development of new energy supplies."

Not "provide," see? Just, "help provide."

There's hope though. That $3.14 billion was an increase of 28.5 per cent over 1973 earnings, due, as Reuter reported, to "sharply higher prices" and despite "an 11 per cent drop in the volume of petroleum sold."

Tanker Menace in Busy Strait

THE SUN
An Editorial

Key Washington State political figures are saying firmly that the natural beauty and bounty of Puget Sound must take precedence over the convenience of oil tankers. This is excellent—as far as it goes.

Senator Warren Magnuson has, as expected, resumed his effort to require double-strength bottoms on new tankers carrying Alaskan oil. And Governor Dan Evans now stands firmly behind the idea of unloading tankers at a port outside Puget Sound, presumably Port Angeles.

But if the worldwide tanker accident record makes for caution in relation to Puget Sound it should, surely, also engender a new caution about the use of the tankers in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

One can easily foresee a sequence leading to very large oil unloading operations at Port Angeles, involving heavy tanker traffic through the strait. The primary need is for a facility capable of getting enough oil into a growing northwestern market at a time of declining imports from Canada. But a further possible step—the oil companies are already arguing it is essential to make the Evans plan economically viable—is to make the Port Angeles unloading complex a prime link in the system for moving a very large additional quantity of oil to the U.S. Midwest. (Some even see B.C. tied into such a system.)

We underestimate potential traffic in this waterway at our peril. As Noel Mostert's book Supership well illustrates, the situation is bleak wherever tanker routes coincide with regular shipping lanes — as in the English Channel.

High risk has been built into many of the giant-scale tankers commissioned in the sixties and the seventies. They are over-reliant on single power systems which often break down, leaving them adrift and helpless. Designers have tended to underestimate the wave pressures they would have to sustain and storm damage to hulls has been frequent. Such features as extra propellers have not usually been provided and this makes them less manoeuvrable—and more prone to accident—than they otherwise would be.

In and of itself, the long-familiar danger of tanker gases in empty tanks exploding is serious enough. Prudence would have dictated an extra safety emphasis in design, but just the opposite has been true. All of which helps to explain why in 1971, when accidental ship losses totalled one million tons, a third of the losses were tankers. And why, in the first quarter of 1974, there were 326 tanker casualties.

A goodly percentage of the shipping in the English Channel is tankers inbound and outbound from Rotterdam. The mingling of ships from the most to the least safely-operated has had a truly sorry result. Time and again, British and international pilotage and safety rules have been brushed aside and this has sometimes led to disastrous collisions. This recklessness — particularly pronounced in ships flying flags of convenience — causes Mr. Mostert to doubt the effectiveness of a requirement that ships travel in one or the other of two lanes depending on their direction.

The lanes, Mr. Mostert says, are ignored by many ships. In one case, a Peruvian freighter struck a tanker which exploded and sank. In the following days, two other freighters ignored cautionary lights, struck the wreckage and sank.

It is thus astonishing to hear of a U.S.-Canadian agreement to set up a voluntary traffic separation system for the Juan de Fuca and Puget Sound areas. Nothing short of the most rigorous traffic control and monitoring will have any chance of being effective.

Some design improvements are to be expected in the U.S.-flag ships slated for the Alaska run, but that can offer only a measure of comfort when they will be operating in waters congested with ships of widely-varying quality. The only sure way of keeping the strait in reasonable condition is assuring that it does not become a main tanker route.

It's Rotten Being a Boy

By GARY LAUTENS

If you're 10 and a boy, rotten is . . .

Rotten is taking one of your mother's best pies across the street and giving it to a neighbor who has the flu.

Rotten is having a nightmare and nobody to cuddle.

Rotten is explaining to your mother how you got soaking wet coming straight home from school.

Rotten is doing your homework, and then the teacher giving everybody an extra day.

Rotten is being chased by big kids.

Rotten is rain on your birthday.

Rotten is having to go to bed at 9:30 just in the middle of a good TV program.

Rotten is having an older sister who can stay up 'til 10.

Rotten is watching your father hug your mother and all that other mush when you're hungry and want dinner.

Rotten is the noise that gives you away every time you open the glass jar in the front room and try to get a handful of peanuts.

Rotten is getting up Sunday morning at 7:30 and being told to go back to bed for another hour.

Rotten is any car ride that takes longer than 7 minutes.

Rotten is waiting at the dentist's.

Rotten is going to a birthday party and then being asked by your mother what you ate, what the other kids gave as presents, and if you said "thank you."

Rotten is being the last one picked in street hockey.

Rotten is being the only one in the family without a house-key.

Rotten is always winding up with the kitchen chair from the basement whenever there are extra people for dinner.

Rotten is being asked 115 times a day, "What are you up to?"

There's a drop-in centre now for Fernwood residents; it's at 1286 Gladstone Ave. and telephone number is 384-7441.

Jack Godlonton, a Local Initiates Project worker in the area, said residents are invited to use the drop-in centre, to have coffee, make suggestions or if they need help, the people at the centre will try to do all they can.

The centre is currently working on a newsletter for the FERNWOOD COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION and this should be distributed by Feb. 17.

At an executive meeting last week directors and LIP workers got together to discuss projects and to work out an accounting system.

A line of communication between the centre and the association was also developed to everyone's satisfaction.

Letters have now been sent out by the ALBERT HEAD RATEPAYERS ASSOCIATION to provincial and regional officials on two matters of concern to the group.

Shirley Wilde, president, sent a letter to Norman Levi, minister of human resources, stating that Albert Head and Metchosin ratepayers do not want to participate in a community resource board.

"The residents wish to retain their dignity and individual responsibility for their own welfare without interference," Wilde wrote Levi.

In a letter to the Capital Regional Board, Wilde asks board chairman Jim Campbell confirmation of assurance that nothing in the regional plan will result in a sewage outfall off Albert Head.

Albert Head and Metchosin have both asked the region to allow area representative Ken Rainey to employ a planner to help residents plan the area to future desire.

In other news residents are reminded of the public meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the Metchosin Community Hall where a discussion will be held on community health and resource teams and how they fit into the community.

Thirty one memberships paid for by Wagon Train Estates have been returned to the company, reports Axel Brock-Miller, president of the FLORENCE LAKE INVOLVEMENT ASSOCIA.

At the last meeting of the association Wagon Train offered to pay the memberships of any resident in the trailer park who joined the association.

Thirty residents took up the offer.

The company, in a letter to park residents, said the park development (Hidden Valley) has been the target of continued and unjustified criticism.

". . . This action has been carried out by certain members of the involvement association which is being used as a front for their own biased actions in interfering with the daily affairs of Hidden Valley."

In rejecting the memberships at an executive meeting this week, Brock-Miller says the association has also cancelled the membership held by Wagon Train Estates. Brock-Miller said the company tried to pack the membership of the 100-member group and that the decision by the executive was unanimous and was taken according to their own bylaws.

The association refunded the company $46.50 which represented the annual dues paid at the last general meeting.

In other business director Maxine Crofton has taken over the position of secretary-treasurer replacing Barbara Micham who resigned for personal reasons.

Joscelyn Turkington was named interim director until the annual general meeting in March.

The next executive meeting will be Monday Feb. 17.

More Rentalsmen?

CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP) — The office of Rentalsman, already implemented in British Columbia and Manitoba, likely will be adopted across the country, Canada's home builders were told Wednesday.

Barre Clark, British Columbia's Rentalsman, told the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada that the concept has been shown to be a good, workable idea.

Ontario and Saskatchewan are close to adopting the idea, which relieves the courts of the burden of landlord-tenant disputes and questions of possession, he added.

Clark said first-year operation costs likely will be $1 million for his office, which has a staff of 50.

The same service through the court system, would cost $14 million, he claimed.

Tenants' groups refer to him as "Landlordsman" and landlords accuse him of being tenant-oriented, but he considers himself an ombudsman, he added.

It is evident there is increasing tension between landlords and tenants, with both sides becoming more vocal and in his first four months in office, a total of 45,000 disputes were registered, Clark pointed out.

A provincial decision to impose rent controls would have been taken regardless of which political party was in power, he said.

Herb Stricker of Toronto, past president of the Urban Development Institute, criticized rent controls as a punitive type of legislation that discriminates unfairly against landlords.

They have been a disaster anywhere they have been tried, he claimed.

He called the imposition of rent controls in British Columbia an act of "supreme political cowardice". In Ontario, he said, the threat of controls "hangs over us like a sword."

Bob Davies, president of Equity Capital Corp. Ltd. of Calgary, said rent control advocates do not seem to understand the economic problems involved in providing adequate housing.

NOSTALGIC FERVOR AS AUTOMEN RALLY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 10,000 unemployed blue-collar workers came to Washington Wednesday for a protest rally that at times looked like a political convention and sounded like a revival meeting.

The meeting was sponsored by the United Auto Workers union, which has borne the brunt of recession-caused layoffs.

Interviews with some of the participants, many of whom came by bus, showed a political and social fervor paralleling the new deal days of Franklin Roosevelt.

"This is wonderful. It will at least let Washington know what things are like all over the country," said Michael Monaco, 53, of Wilmington, Del. His father participated in the 1932 veterans bonus march on Washington and Wednesday's rally "reminds me of Roosevelt's times. Everybody's together; everybody's enthused," he said.

Rollback Benefit To B.C.

B.C.'s minister of economic development, says the Canadian Transport Commission's decision to rollback a 25-per-cent rail freight rate increase is beneficial to B.C.

Gary Lauk commented after the commission pushed the rate back, which railways have been charging for 10 days, and permitted the railways to file new 12.5-per-cent rate increases which would take effect immediately.

"It appears to me as if they're taking a more gradual approach to the raising of freight rates," Lauk said.

Toronto Index Hike Record for Month

The industrial index of the Toronto Stock Exchange rose a record 23 points in January to close the month at 179.89.

Industrial stocks rose an average of 15 per cent in value during the month, according to a study by the exchange.

The upward push was achieved on relatively small numbers of shares.

The enthusiasm to buy was not matched by any enthusiasm to sell at what appeared to be a market bottom.

Total trading volume on the Toronto exchange in January was 54.7 million shares, up strongly from the doldrum month of December but much lower than the 76.8 million shares that had been traded the previous January.

The January surge was achieved on a sale of $459.1 million worth of trading, lower than the $645.8 million the previous January, which had not produced such a dramatic upturn.

The same pattern was evident in other Canadian markets in January, although Vancouver, which is mainly a mining board, did not gain in dollar value.

In Montreal volume was 13.7 million shares worth $146.4 million, down from 28.7 million worth $186.4 million the previous January.

Vancouver's totals were 41.3 million worth $25.5 million, down from 63.2 million worth $54 million.

Vancouver's trading in January was up 4.6 per cent from December but dollar value fell, against a national trend, by 6.6 per cent.

Montreal volume was up 2.2 per cent and dollar value was up a remarkable 107.7 per cent.

Toronto's total trading was up 35.4 per cent in volume and 98.1 per cent in dollar value from December.

The January surge was directly related to the drop in short-term interest rates, according to market analysts. Further declines in the interest rates could be expected to bring another sharp rise, especially if accompanied by government moves designed to install confidence in the North American economy.

The pace of the market recovery was easing in February, however, and the industrial index had risen only 1 point as of the close of trading Wednesday, after three full trading days, this is below the point-a-day pace in January.

The February increases are related to the announcement that the Syncrude project will go ahead. Both Imperial Oil and Gulf Oil, partners in the project, moved up on the market this week, bringing a one-day rise in the industrial index Wednesday of 1.16, largest singie gain since the 3.72 points increase of Jan. 27.

Other major issues to gain in early February trading are IBM, Reichhold Chemicals, Sony Corp., Westcoast Transmission and Texasgulf.

Third Firm Cuts Copper

TORONTO (CP) — Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. Became Friday the third company in two days to announce a reduction in its domestic copper price.

The price for electrolytic copper wirebar was reduced to 63.375 cents a pound from 68.125 cents, effective Feb. 1.

Hudson Bay Mining does not sell copper in the United States.

The move follows similar announcements by Noranda Sales Corp. Ltd. and the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

Prices have been dropping rapidly during recent months as copper inventories increase due to slumping demand, especially in the housing and automobile industries.

$ EXCHANGE

In Victoria today purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollars was .9935 U.S. by the Royal Bank with .9940 for cheques and .98.35 for coins. Selling rates were 1.0040 for cheques and 1.0045 for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon today was up 1-50 at $0.99 23-25. Pound sterling was up 9-20 at $2.37 1-100.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was off 1-50 at $1.00 2-25. Pound sterling was up 2-5 at $2.37 1-5.

Canadian Utilities

Canadian Utilities Ltd. reports net earnings from operations for 1974 of $15,260,000 or $1.24 per common share.

This compares with $14,375,000 or $1.15 per common share the previous year.

An additional $444,000 or four cents per common share was also reported in 1974 as non-recurring gains from the sale of certain utility distribution facilities.

Federal Industries

Federal Industries Ltd. has announced unaudited net earnings for the nine months ended Dec. 31, 1974, of $55,000 or 1.6 cents a common share, compared with $2,192,000 or 63.7 cents a share in the first nine months of 1973.

The company said in a statement that rapid expansion during the past two years had resulted in a lossening of many controls, but predicted a slight improvement in earnings this quarter.

Southam Press

Net income before extraordinary items for the year ended Dec. 31 was $19,341,000 or $1.55 a share compared with $18,429,000 or $1.48 a share in 1973.

Sports Hit Hard By Labor Dispute

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Sports in Greater Victoria are in a state of turmoil today in the wake of Wednesday's lockout of members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Several events have been cancelled or postponed as recreational facilities are being shut down because of inability to maintain parks and buildings. The strike by CUPE employees in Victoria entered its 12th day today.

Closed are G. R. Pearkes Arena, Gordon Head Recreation Centre, Cedar Hill Community Centre, Cedar Hill Golf course, Lambrick Park pool, Crystal Pool, Juan de Fuca Arena and Pool and some Area and pool and some parks.

Memorial Arena will be open for Western Canada Hockey League games involving Victoria Cougars and for professional wrestling. Junior "B" intermediate and minor hockey have all been cancelled as have public and figure skating.

Events are still running on schedule at Esquimalt Sports Centre but manager Joe Iannarelli said Wednesday the facility would be closed Monday at 8 p.m.

"We're going to turn off the power plant and wait and see what happens. At this stage we don't have any idea how long we'll be closed" he said.

Once the power is turned off, Iannarelli added, the stability of the ice will depend entirely on the weather. Warm temperatures are certain to melt the centre's six curling sheets and the hockey and skating surface.

Parks in Esquimalt are also open but a spokesman indicated Wednesday they will be closed sometime next week.

Still open for business are Henderson Park Pavilion, Victoria Curling Club, the Racquet Club to its members and park facilities in Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

Already cancelled are figure and public skating and games in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League the South Island big Six Hockey League and minor hockey using arenas that have already been shut down.

Closing of the Esquimalt Sports Centre Monday would affect the Esquimalt Ladies' Valentine curling bonspiel there next week.

Victoria Scorpions, trailing Burnaby-New Westminster Broncos 1-0 in their best-of-three Dogwood Senior "A" men's basketball semi-finals, will play as scheduled Saturday night and if necessary Sunday afternoon at Mt. Douglas Senior Secondary.

And as long as schools remain open play involving Victoria Saints and Saanich Westerners in the Inter-City women's Senior "A" Basketball League is expected to continue. The same applies to games in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League, which also uses school gyms.

School sports are expected to continue at least for the time being. If the schools are shut down, however, chairman Wayne Erickson of the Greater Victoria Senior High School Boys' Basketball League said schedule changes have been planned. He did not elaborate.

SKATERS DENY CHARGES

WINNIPEG (CP) — A clash over the philosophy of training and not discipline problems was cited Wednesday by three speed skaters as the reason for their dismissal from Canada's national team.

Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg, Gerrald Cassan of Ottawa and Andrew Barron of Edmonton were dropped from the team Monday and returned to Canada Tuesday. All denied in separate statements that they broke any training rules.

World Hockey Move Doubted

By The Canadian Press

A report that Canada and the Soviet Union had reached tentative agreement to open the world hockey championship to professionals was met with skepticism on almost all fronts Wednesday.

There was even confusion over whether the agreement, if there was one, really related to the world championship. One view is that what was really meant was the annual Bunny Ahearne tournament held in Europe each spring and usually involving club teams from various countries.

The National Hockey League reacted to the report from Stockholm by saying that, as far as it was concerned, it was without foundation.

Alan Eagleson of Toronto, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, said that if the idea is to open the current world championship to pros, "we're not interested."

And John (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said he saw difficulties for the promoters of any such move.

Eagleson, who along with Father David Bauer, former national team coach and manager, has been looking into the possibility of Canada returning to international competition, said:

"I understand there is a movement afoot by the IIHF that would result in Canada being able to use pros in the Bunny Ahearne tournament. We're not interested. Our best players would not be available at that time, the end of March or early April.

"As I have indicated, it is my ambition to see a World Cup with Canada as the host country in 1976. An invitation would be extended to the top five or six countries — the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland, the United States and West Germany."

Give Groh Credit . . . Or: A Track Out of Whack

Some mid-week musings, and from this corner it wasn't totally fair to Gary Groh, winner of the Hawaiian Open golf tournament, to say that it was Arnold Palmer's missed putt on 17 which cost Palmer the championship and gave it to Groh. Actually, it was Groh's 18-foot putt for a birdie on 18 which won him the championship. After all, Groh didn't know when he stroked his putt that Palmer, playing behind him, had missed. Besides, Groh beat Palmer by two shots. So give the champ his dues.

Incidentally, Honolulu is noted for its rainstorms such as delayed this year's event, and it doesn't always rain in all parts of the city at the same time, either. Got there once, last year in fact, met and talked to some of the pros, Bill Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Al Geiberger, Chi-Chi Rodriguez — nothing like name dropping, is there? — but this is about the weather. We left the Waikiki area to play golf at one of the suburban courses in bright sunshine one day only to find on arrival that the course had been closed because of a deluge only minutes earlier. And we hadn't seen one drop. Two hours later, however, the course was deemed playable, the water drains off that quickly. Usually, that is.

It's been noted too that the UVic running track is out of whack and has been all the time. Which is why Glenda Reiser's record mile run of 4:34.9 here two years ago won't be sanctioned. She didn't run far enough, and it's all got to do with curbs, or no curbs. The UVic track hasn't got a curb, and that means it is measured 8 inches from the rail, whereas a curbed track is measured 12 inches out from the curb. The difference works out to about eight feet a mile, which Brenda was short. But the more remarkable part of the story is if more knowledgeable people in the sport here knew this, why did they keep it secret all this time? And, if they didn't, then there can't be too many knowledgeable people around, can there? Regardless, somebody goofed, but good. Now all sorts of records may be tossed out. Shame!

One of the disturbing parts of the recent Consols playoff to Bob Gallaugher, one of the better city rinks, wasn't his final loss, but how he came to be described as a "veteran," when last year he was "young." But then he has nine years on Brad Clarke and Steve Skillings, both 19, so, in relative terms, he isn't any kid, is he? But he is still young and with time and talent on his side in his bid for a Brier berth. Meanwhile, the other surprise in the playdowns was Vic Wood being the winner of the PCCA event when he wasn't even supposed to skip the rink. Ron Braunstein was, but he had to opt out because of illness; and it would be something, wouldn't it, if a Brier championship was in the offing for Wood, his grandfather before, him, Howie Wood, achieving that distinction three times, and his father once.

Elsewhere and about, Doug Anderson and Bert Bertoia are two of the people behind the move to have a minor hockey association in Oak Bay ready to go when next season rolls around. And you have to give Doug marks for perseverence. He was a pro with the Cougars, coached the first junior Cougars, took over the ill-fated Maple Leafs a couple of seasons ago, spent a while up-island in the same field, has devoted much time to Little League baseball, and now says he is about to become a curler, but only when the Oak Bay rink opens. He says he doesn't feel equal to the challenge of the Sportsmen's League. It figures. And oh, yes, that Oak Bay meeting is Sunday at 8 at the Senior Citizens Centre, CUPE and all willing, I suppose.

Saw a report, too, where coach Fred Shero of the Philadelphia Flyers says tests prove that hockey players' left legs are 25 per cent stronger than their right ones . . . that comes because players always skate to their left in skating sessions, and thus the left leg gets more strain . . . Shero also notes that there are more left-handed shooters than righties, whatever that proves; but he also recommends that youngsters at least try and learn to be switch-shooters a la Gordie Howe.

P.S. And more about young hockey shooters. One way of determining which way a player should shoot, it is recommended in the Russian system, according to Shero, is to study his powder-room habits . . . left hand, left-hand shot . . . which doesn't do muchfor the human rightists, does it?

Good night, all.

STEVE SHUTT
. . . 20-goal man

By The Canadian Press

Before Philadelphia Flyers went to New York Wednesday night, they took note of their scouting report which showed Rod Gilbert on a hot scoring streak for the Rangers.

Flyers coach Fred Shero decided that Gilbert, who had nine goals and 13 assists in his last 10 games, would require special attention, and assigned Ross Lonsberry to check Gilbert.

Lonsberry was so effective that he found time to score once himself while holding Gilbert to only two shots on goal and no points.

The result was a 4-3 Philadelphia victory, Flyers' third straight over the Rangers this season, in the first of a home-and-home series that continues with the Rangers visiting Philadelphia tonight.

In other NHL games Wednesday, Montreal Canadiens beat Detroit Red Wings 8-5, Pittsburgh Penguins defeated Los Angeles Kings 3-2, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Minnesota North Stars 2-1, California Seals beat Washington Capitals 5-1 and Boston Bruins tied Atlanta Flames 3-3.

Besides the work of Lonsberry, Shero also had praise for Bill Clement who scored an unassisted goal when he broke past the Rangers defence and beat goalie Ed Giacomin.

Clement, who had a poor season last year, almost didn't make the team this season.

Steve Shutt's second goal of the game and 20th of the season broke a 5-5 tie and led the Canadiens to victory at Montreal.

At Bloomington, Minn., Jim Pappin scored on a pass from Darey Rota early in the third period to give the Hawks the win over the North Stars.

The victory pulled Chicago to within one point of leading Vancouver in the Smythe Division, giving the Hawks a chance to overtake the Canucks when they visit Vancouver on Friday.

The Bruins gained the tie at Atlanta on goals by Bobby Orr and Carol Vadnais in a 30-second span midway in the final period.

CRUSADERS STOP HULL AND JETS

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Crusaders coach Jack Vivian told his players that if they went out and stopped the Bobby Hull line they'd come up with a victory. It worked.

The Crusaders stopped the most productive line in the World Hockey Association and defeated Winnipeg Jets 3-2 Wednesday night.

Vivian, as well as Hull, who is the Jets player-coach, had high praise for Cleveland centre Gerry Pinder and wingers Grant Erickson and Skip Krake.

"They won the game for us," Vivian said. "Krake did a great job on Hull, Erickson handled Anders Hedberg and Pinder was a lot more effective at centre than as a winger."

Hull, along with Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson have scored 84 goals and 193 points.

In other WHA games Wednesday, Houston Aeros beat Toronto Toros 5-2, Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated Edmonton Oilers 4-2, Phoenix Roadrunners whipped San Diego Mariners 9-2 and Vancouver Blazers beat Chicago Cougars 4-2.

"What a hockey player," said Vivian. "I don't know how he coaches and plays at the same time. What a show he puts on."

At Vancouver, Danny Lawson's goal early in the third period broke a 2-2 tie against the Cougars and the Blazers easily went on to the victory in a contest that saw the Chicago club outshot 35-16.

Allen Won't Swing for Braves

Times News Service

Atlanta Braves said Wednesday they were placing controversial slugger Dick Allen on the voluntary retirement list because Allen told them by letter he doesn't want to play in Atlanta.

Allen, who led the American League with 33 homers while playing for Chicago White Sox, will not be allowed to play for any other team because his contract belongs to the Braves.

He was traded to Atlanta and still has a year left on a three-year contract.

Eddie Robinson, general manager of the National League team, earlier asked commissioner Bowie Kuhn to investigate reports that Philadelphia Phillies were interfering with Atlanta's rights to Allen.

DICK ALLEN

Phillies' players, led by second baseman Dave Cash and third baseman Mike Schmidt, were reported to have headed a campaign to try and convince Allen to play with the Phillies.

With James Bay's Talent Rough Play Isn't Needed

RUGBY
max low

That team is James Bay Athletic Association. But lately the Bays have been winning more rugby games than friends with their style of play.

It happened again last weekend at Macdonald Park when violence spoiled what could and should have been an excellent encounter.

James Bay won narrowly, by two points in fact. But the fruits of victory were not sweet. Although it was the Bays' home ground, most of those there obviously wanted the University of Victoria Vikings to win.

They should have won, too. Cleverly led by veteran playing-coach Allan Rees, they outplayed James Bay for three-quarters of the match. But the younger university boys fell for the old retaliation trick and reliable Barry Robbins was there to kick the Bays to victory on penalties.

Two fights erupted, warnings were given and finally James Bay forward Peter Simmonds was ordered from the field by referee Jan Curnow. And there was little doubt which side started most of the trouble.

"This matter will go before our disciplinary committee, with a report from the referee," Victoria Rugby Union president Don Burgess said this week.

The matter of violence on the field was a problem, admitted Burgess who said that while Curnow does an excellent job of refereeing, he was quite surprised James Bay players weren't penalized more for "walking on people."

"I've played against New Zealand teams, which are renowned for their ferocious rucking," added Burgess. "And yet they never walked on anybody."

"I've always understood when you go into a ruck there has to be a reasonable chance of winning the ball when you start raking or else it constitutes dangerous play," the union president said.

And that's precisely why Simmonds was sent off, seconds after two other players were warned for fighting.

Let's hope coach Tillman Briggs can get his boys to tone things down a little in those rucks and strive for vigor without rough stuff.

★ ★ ★

The best things to come out of that game were performances of great promise by two young UVic players.

One was by scrum-half Brent Johnston, brother of James Bay captain Gary Johnston. Brent had a fine game and needs only to speed up his passes from the base of the scrum to rate as one of the best around.

And the other was by speedy winger Iain Benson, who raced over for one of UVic's two tries. A 19-year-old ex-Oak Bay High School player, Benson was a member of the Island under-19 side, has been named to Victoria's under-23 Junior Crimson Tide team and is considered one of the hottest prospects in the province.

They are two young players who showed that, with talent and by reading the game cleverly, all that rough stuff just isn't necessary.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Collecting honors in Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition for second time is Elsie Haddon, who led distaff tenpinners in 16th week of 12th annual contest. Elsie earned weekly award that qualifies her for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs by rolling 167-200-184—551 series in Wednesday Matinee Trio League at Mayfair Lanes.

Claremont, Oak Bay Overpower Opponents

Undefeated Claremont Spartans and Oak Bay Barbarians demonstrated Wednesday why they are leading the two divisions of the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League.

Spartans stretched their lead in the West Division to six points by hammering the visiting Esquimalt Dockers 32-0 and the Barbarians pounded visiting Spectrum 41-6 to stay two points ahead of St. Michael's University School in the East Division.

St. Michael's also put on a strong scoring display Wednesday by trouncing Mt. Douglas 57-0 in the only other league match. Ed MacAulay had five tries in the win.

Spartans ran up a 12-0 first-half lead on the way to its second shutout in five outings. Jim Sandwith led the club with three tries.

Barbarians, who visit Claremont next Wednesday, managed only a 14-6 halftime lead before exploding. Rich Foster sparked the team with two tries and three converts.

UVic Teams Face Key Hoop Tests

This is make-or-break weekend for University of Victoria's basketball teams.

UVic is in Vancouver for Canada West University Athletic Association men's and women's games Friday against UBC. Vikings can afford no worse than a split and Vikettes must win twice to keep their championship hopes alive.

Vikings, hard-hit by injuries and sickness in last weekend's two losses to Calgary Dinosaurs, except to have Jim Duddridge (fractured cheekbone), Doug Mosher (cut eyebrow) and Bert Zethof (flu) ready for action.

Historic Park Planned in Yale

The provincial government plans to buy a portion of Yale and preserve the area as an historic site.

Deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace said Wednesday the older area of Yale near the Fraser River will soon be declared an historic site under the Archaeological and Historic Sites Protection Act.

The government then plans to purchase about 40 to 50 lots on Front Street across from land on the riverfront already owned by the Crown. The lots involve about 10 per cent of Yale's total area.

No cost figure has been placed on the project and Wallace said plans are still fairly open although purchasing should be completed in a year.

No properties have been bought so far and Wallace said he did not know of any options on properties.

Some reconstruction of old buildings may be started but Wallace said Yale will not become another restored village like Barkerville.

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley, who presents the Yale-Lillooet constituency, said he was "very disappointed" the project has become public knowledge because the price of land may increase substantially when it is known the government wants to pick up real estate.

"Picking up options was the first step and there's no longer any possibility of that," Hartley said bitterly.

"It may well be there will be no historic site at this time," he said.

But Wallace said he expected the site to be set aside by the government in a matter of days.

Yale, on the west side of the Fraser, about 100 miles northeast of Vancouver, was established as a Hudson's Bay trading post in 1848 and during the gold rush of the 1850s thousands of miners poured through on their way north.

With a population of only 300 now, Yale is mainly a small service centre for Trans-Canada highway traffic.

Wallace said the area to be set aside is about three blocks from the highway and does not involve any of the commercial areas of town.

The government is acting on the recommendation of the Historic Sites Advisory board which has been studying preservation of the site for about 1½ years.

Harmful Color Denied

Failure of certain components in six models of Panasonic color television sets, which federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde warned last week could be dangerous, is very unlikely, the manufacturer of the sets said this week.

"To the best of their knowledge, there has been no failure of these components in color TV in the U.S.A. or Canada, in normal consumer use," said Matsushita Electric of Canada Ltd. in a written release.

Lalonde said the models CT-201C, CT-324o, CT-398CA, CT-701C, CT-702C and CT-924C can emit excessive levels of x-rays through the picture tube and screen if the critical component fails.

Matsushita said the x-radiation problem was found only under laboratory test conditions, where certain components are deliberately caused to fail.

Lalonde said some sets continue to give an acceptable picture even after the component fails and the health hazard exists.

The government is not asking Panasonic to stop selling any products nor is Panasonic withdrawing these sets from the market, the company said.

CHRISTMAS SEALS UP

Donations to the Christmas Seal campaign were up in the Victoria area in 1974 from previous years, totalling $57,948 compared to $53,800 in 1973.

B.C.s total was the largest in the 52-year history of the fund-raising drive by the B.C. Tuberculosis — Christmas Seal Society.

At the close of the drive, $553,360 had been given, up from $485,476 in 1973.

Inmate Beaten —Lawyer

A Saanich youth left a Fraser Valley prison because he was "beleaguered" by demands to perfrom homosexual acts with other inmates and beaten up when he refused to do so, the youth's lawyer said Tuesday.

Lawyer Rodney Smith asked Judge William Ostler in Victoria Provincial Court that Albert Norman Leberge, 17, of Saanich, serve his jail sentence at a prison other than the Haney correctional Institute.

Smith said Leberge left the Haney prison after he had been beaten by other inmates for refusing to perform homosexual acts. The lawyer said Leberge did not escape from the prison, but failed to return after he had been given a pass.

Leberge pleaded guilty to stealing a car Jan. 11 from an underground parking lot at 1900 Mayfair and to being unlawfully at large.

Smith said Leberge had admitted to Victoria police that he had stolen the car so he would be held over for a court appearance in Victoria, instead of being sent back to Haney.

Ostler sentenced Leberge to six months definite and six months indeterminate and recommended that the definite sentence be served in a forestry camp.

Comox Trims Winter Agenda

Firefighting equipment for the area's new arena-pool complex has not yet arrived, said manager Michael Creedon, so events scheduled for the complex will have to be dropped from the carnival agenda.

13-Death Blaze: Suspect Cited

MONTREAL (CP) — After hearing 12 hours of testimony fromn 23 witnesses, Coroner Cyrille Delage held Fernand Beaudet criminally responsible at a coroner's inquest Wednesday for the deaths of 13 persons in a north-end nightclub Jan. 21.

Delage also sentenced Beaudet, 28, to 30 days in jail for contempt for refusing to testify at the inquest into the slayings at the Gargantua Bar Salon.

As for Richard Blass, the prison escapee killed in a police raid three days after the Gargantua incident and implicated in the deaths at the inquest, the coroner said:

"I see no point in holding Richard Blass responsible in view of th fact that he is already dead."

The coroner held that the fire in the Gargantua was of criminal orgiin and the inquest testimony led him to conclude Beaudet was the "presumed author" of the crime.

No criminal charges have been formally laid yet. Before such charges can be laid in cases of violent deaths in Quebec province, a coroner's inquest is held to determine whether there is criminal responsibility.

Called to the witness stand, Beaudet put his hand on the Bible and said:

"Sir, I refuse to testify. I mourn the death of Richard Blass. Long live Richard Blass."

Asked by the coroner to show cause why he should not be held in contempt, he replied: "I refuse to answer."

Beaudet, arrested on a coroner's warrant last Friday along with four other persons in connection with the slayings, was the only one to remain in custody after the inquest.

Beaudet's girlfriend, Irene Ouellet, 22, cab driver Joseph Leboeuf, 36, Michel Melchoir, 22, and Richard Blass's brother, Michel, 30, were freed.

The tape of a wiretapped telephone conversation showed Beaudet's sister, Gisele, 20, telling a friend, Carole Cholette, Jan. 24 that Beaudet had been told to be present at the Gargantua nightclub by Richard Blass, a man he feared.

She said in her statement that Blass herded the victims into a small room, fired a shot through the door when one man tried to break out and then blocked the door with a juke-box.

Ouellet said she spoke with Beaudet four days after the slayings and he told her: "I can't stand living like this any more. I have 13 murders on my conscience."

Price Index Rejig

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada announced Wednesday that the agency will be publishing consumer price index figures which are adjusted to account for seasonal factors.

"There will, of course, continue to be only one consumer price index for Canada, based as before on unadjusted data which measure changes in prices actually paid and which should continue to be extensively used for a wide variety of purposes . . .," a statement from Statistics Canada said.

The new seasonally-adjusted series of price reports will attempt to measure how much of month-to-month price changes are due to such factors as increased use of home heating oil in winter, cheaper prices for domestic vegetables in spring and summer and price changes which occur regularly, such as new vehicle price lists in August and September.

A-G Firm On RCMP Funding

EDMONTON (CP) — British Columbia Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Wednesday the province will "go right to the mat" with the federal government over the cost of the RCMP to the province.

Macdonald said in an interview he had "some brief discussions" with federal Solicitor-General Warren Allmand over the cost-sharing of the RCMP contract in B.C. but "we really didn't do anything significant."

It is "virtually impossible" to negotiate police costs here because both ministers are involved in a federal-provincial ministerial meeting discussing reports prepared by the national conference on native people and the criminal justice system he added.

"There are just too many things that have to be discussed here" he said. "It just isn't possible to talk about our problem right now but when we do negotiate we're going right to the mat with Ottawa over this."

Macdonald one of the most vocal ministers at the conference, Wednesday said B.C. "isn't as concerned with having native constables as in having status and non-status people being eligible for appointment to the RCMP."

Earlier, Macdonald said native people will have to be drawn into any decision-making on judicial policies in order to make the changes relevant to their lifestyle.

"If we can develop, say, an alternative to incarceration for some offences, it will not work unless the Indian community can be convinced to supervise the alternative public-service projects in native communities," said Macdonald.

B.C. Hydro 'Forced' to Borrow

Premier Barrett said Wednesday inflation and escalating costs of Columbia River project have forced B.C. Hydro to borrow more than $100 million on the open market.

Barrett admitted that last spring he told the legislature the government would borrow only $100 million on the open market and now has borrowed $275 million with indications of more borrowing in the future.

"I had hoped we would be able to confine it to $100 million," he said, but escalating costs have forced Hydro to seek more funds on the open market.

Last spring the legislature authorized borrowing up to $500 million for new Hydro projects and Barrett said at the time the province planned to go on the open market for an initial $100 million instead of financing internally.

Socred finance critic Newel Morrison said Wednesday Barrett "cannot be trusted" because he has gone back on his original statement only $100 million would be borrowed.

"I hoped we would only be going for $100 million . . . to say I deliberately mislead the house is erroneous," said Barrett.

Sources in the government inidcated Tuesday Hydro is again seeking Arab petro-dollars as part of its $500 million borrowing program.

Last September Hydro borrowed $100 million on the New York open market, in October it negotiated a $100 million loan with an unidentified Arab source and in December borrowed another $75 million in Eastern Canada.

'Reward Police' To Screen Cases

OTTAWA (CP) — The Law Reform Commission of Canada says society must reward police for dealing with cases of minor offenders without laying charges.

In praising and calling for an increase in this screening process, the commission says in a working paper released Wednesday: "At present the incentives and rewards open to police encourage the laying of charges, not screening out.

The working paper recommends the continuance and furtherance of the practice of diverting minor offenders, generally the young offender or juvenile, away from trial into other paths.

It says such action is better than trial and prison—for society, the victim of minor crime and for the offender.

The paper, noting that police have always undertaken this screening process, says there must be publicly-stated policy guides so that the public can understand it and so that there will be equal justice for all.

Providing this screening in a uniform and consistent way would require an increase in police resources and a change in the situation in which police budgets tended to tie the notion of law enforcement with charges laid.

"Overtime is paid for appearing in court as a witness and in some cases this can act as a considerable financial incentive to charging and keeping a case before the courts," the paper says.

Herring Men Offered Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said Tuesday British Columbia fish companies have asked fishermen to take a cut of 40 per cent in prices for roe herring.

Stevens said seiners have been offered $75 a ton, compared to the $131.50 they received in 1974, while gillnetters who received $250 a ton last year have been offered $150.

He told the Vancouver and District Labor Council the negotiating position of the companies is based on their concern over the emergence of China as a supplier of roe herring to Japan.

"They are worried that China will sell the roe at a lower cost and unless our fishermen take a pay cut, they will lose the market," he said.

WHY GOLD?

Throughout recorded history gold has provided a store of value for man during troubled times. As currencies depreciate, gold appreciates. This is what we are now witnessing. Rapidly increasing price inflation has resulted in a massive rise in gold values. Jan. 1972 $45 per oz., Jan. 1973 $66, Jan. 1974 $120, Jan. 1975 $180, Jan. 1976 $300?

Our Victoria branch has a large stock of books, periodicals, articles and newsletters available at discount prices on inflation, money credit economics, gold, etc. Browsers welcome.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 21-year-old Victoria man received jail sentences from two sections of Victoria provincial court Wednesday.

Terry Horst Reichenbach, 425 Wilson, appeared first before Judge William Ostler for sentencing on a variety of charges including breaking and entering and theft, possession of hashish and marijuana and possession of stolen property.

A trial had been set for Jan. 14 but the day before Reichenbach appeared in court and changed his plea.

"There can be no question jail is appropriate," Ostler said, in sentencing the accused to 10 months definite and 12 months indeterminate.

Later Reichenbach appeared in Judge Fred Green's traffic court and received 30 days for dangerous driving the sentence to run at the same time as the first one.

Ronald Blake Kreiger, 21, was fined $500 and prohibited from driving for two years when he appeared for sentencing for dangerous driving.

Kreiger, of 8514 East Saanich Road, was charged following a fatal accident on West Saanich Road last June 6. A passenger in his car, Steven John Williams, 22, of 845 Birch, died in the mishap. Police said the accused had been racing with another car at the time.

The crown originally proceeded with a charge of criminal negligence but later reduced it to dangerous driving, to which Kreiger pleaded guilty.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett called the case a "tragic" one. He recommended disposition as proposed by a probation officer but suggested there should be a "substantial" fine.

Ostler agreed and noted there was a mitigating factor in as much as the Crown, in presenting its case, had not mentioned the fact there had been a fatality.

"It should be made clear you are being punished for dangerous driving and not for any offence referred to in the Criminal Code for causing death," the judge told the accused.

★ ★ ★

The measure of a man's honor and respectability is how he treats his wife, Ostler told Ronald Greaves, 1414 Hillside, who appeared for sentencing for assault causing bodily harm.

He fined the accused $100 and placed him on six months probation

★ ★ ★

A 29-year-old man who failed to go to the probation service for completion of a report prior to sentencing lost his temporary freedom.

Benjamin Amos of Campbell River was appearing before Ostler for sentencing in connection with a charge of defrauding the welfare department in Campbell River Dec. 4. He had pleaded guilty.

Amos had been released in his own recognizance pending the report but told Ostler he has lost his appointment card and "didn't realize it was important to attend".

The judge ordered Amos held in custody and remanded him to Feb. 20 for presentence report and sentencing.

★ ★ ★

David Donald Simpson, 35, and his wife Carol Ann Edna, 33, pleaded guilty.

Police said they found $4.32 worth of goods on Simpson and $9.41 worth on his wife. The couple had $90 cash on them at the time.

★ ★ ★

Veora Francis Daniels, 23, of 2715 Quadra, was fined $200 after pleading guilty to shoplifting $21.85 worth of candy, cigarettes; vitamins and cough drops from Shoppers Drug Mart, 3104 Shelbourne, on Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Steven Antoine Ladouceur, 20, and William John Scott, 19, both of 1219 North Park, charged jointly with possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking, elected trial by judge without jury.

A preliminary hearing was set for May 21. Scott is free on his own recognizance; Ladouceur remains in custody as bail was denied him.

Lakhbir Sihota, 19, of 3473 Bethune, was found guilty by Judge Harold Alder of possession of an offensive weapon.

Police alleged the youth had taken a piece of car chain and shook it at a man who had tried to pick a fight with him outside a Victoria beer parlor Oct. 26.

Alder remanded him to Feb. 19 for a presentence report and sentencing.

★ ★ ★

The Times was incorrect in stating Monday Norman Angus Godfrey had pleaded guilty to possession of MDA. He had pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

★ ★ ★

Richard Osborne White, 20, of 973 Caledonia, was fined $200 Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of being an assessory after the fact.

The Crown alleged that last July White repaired a car which had been damaged when it struck a parked vehicle and then left the scene. White, a mechanic, charged $50 for the repairs and did them at home.

Richard Osborne White, 20, of 973 Caledonia, was fined $200 after pleading guilty to a charge of being an assessory after the fact.

The Crown alleged that last July White repaired a car which had been damaged when it struck a parked vehicle and then left the scene. White, a mechanic, charged $50 for the repairs and did them at home.

CELSIUS: APRIL FOOL?

With almost no celsius thermometers in Victoria stores, April Fool's day may well be full of amusing or confusing comments about the weather.

The weather bureau says starting April 1 all official temperature readings will be given in degrees celsius. Conversions will no longer be made for the public.

Yet, a Times survey of local outlets shows that most stores have no thermometers with celsius scales in stock.

Why there are no celsius thermometers on hand is a puzzle to most merchandising departments.

According to a spokesman for The Bay, the thermometer is a stock item regulated by the Vancouver office. But buyers in Toronto and New York have been contacted and a shipment of celsius thermometers is expected in April or May.

An Eatons spokesman said a committee has been set up at its head office to work with the federal government in metric conversion.

Work will begin at the local level following a metric seminar with the federal government Feb. 25, the spokesman said.

To determine celsius reading from Fahrenheit, take five-ninths of the Fahrenheit temperature minus 32 OC equals 5/g (F-32).

Priorities In Judiciary

Priority needs in the justice system have to be decided at the community level, David Vickers, deputy attorney-general, said Wednesday night.

"You cannot sit in a head office and decide on priorities right across the province," he told 180 persons attending the first public meeting of the Capital Region Justice Council at Newcombe Auditorium.

Vickers called the justice system the "last bucket" in a chain of social services and said 80 per cent of those who become involved in the system should not be there in the first place.

"We say, please, each of you, in your communities, look at your homes, churches and community and private organizations and see what you can do."

St. Pierre on Strike

ST. PIERRE (CP) A general strike by workers on the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon started Thursday to protest the presence of special French policemen.

Earlier in the day, Senator Albert Pen, chairman of the general council, the islands' governing body called the strike to back a petition demanding the removal of 65 special policemen from the territory off Newfoundland's south coast.

In a radio broadcast, he asked workers to join a strike by 300 civil servants and employees of the fish plant, agriculture station, construction industry and public service.

The strike, which follows a strike by civil servants last month, brought a halt to practically all activity on the islands.

Senator Pen, who is also mayor of the island capital of 5,500, said a French warship is cruising off the territory. The warship's presence was first reported by the crew of a small vessel that arrived here Wednesday.

The warship that brought the 65 policemen is tied up in the harbor here.

The general council resigned last month to protest the handling of a civil servants' strike by Gov. Cluchard and two representatives from Paris. The governor's office was occupied by strikers at one point.

Overseas Minister Olivier Stirn said in a broadcast from Paris Wednesday that the police were sent ot St. Pierre merely as replacements for 35 mobile guards withdrawn in 1973 after an eight-year assignment to the islands.

In a weekend statement Gov. Cluchard had said the policemen were brought in to ensure peace.

Judges Strike

ROME (AP) — Italian judges and magistrates began a national strike Wednesday, demanding immediate application of a 1970 court order raising their salaries to those of top civil servants.

New Talks Slated On Chan. 10 Role

Further talks with Ottawa are scheduled next week to discuss B.C.'s bid for Channel 10.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said today he meetings Wednesday with federal officials were not conclusive but further meetings will be held.

The provincial government hopes the federal cabinet will set aside Channel 10 for a provincial station, but first indications from Ottawa were that cabinet would not interfere in allottment of the VHF channel.

Strachan was also non-committal on the results of talks with Revenue Minister Ron Basford on federal financial assistance for B.C. Ferries.

Ottawa subsidizes ferries in Eastern Canada and Strachan said he told Basford he was "beginning to get the feeling" B.C. is being discriminated against.

B.C. will continue to seek federal funds for the ferry system, said Strachan, and meetings will be held with Federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

Gas Price War: You'd Better Enjoy It While It Lasts

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's continuing gas war is a big break for local motorists—but not for long, says Bob Dunsmuir, president of the Greater Victoria Automotive Retailers Association.

Dunsmuir, chief spokesman for 97 independent service station operators, sees the plot developing this way: Self-serve stations owned by oil companies will open in more and more locations, selling gas at 57.9 cents a gallon.

Large full-service stations, also by oil companies, will cut their prices to meet the competition from the self-service stations—which they also own.

The small corner service station, leased from the oil companies by independent operators, will be forced out of business.

And finally, the oil companies, owning all the remaining gas stations, will be free to raise their prices as they like without competition from independent operators.

Dunsmuir said about 12 independent operators were forced out of business in 1974 and more could be expected this year.

Not that all the departures are entirely voluntary.

"As the lease expires, the operator has to make an application to renew it. If oil gallonage is down, the oil company may just decide not to renew the lease and close the outlet," Dunsmuir said.

The current gas price war is a boon to motorists but is aiding the oil companies in their aim of gaining control of the retail market, he said.

The price cutting was started by the self-serves, continued by the large service stations and has spread across the city.

"Added to this is the fact there is a surplus of gasoline. There seems to be so much we can't give it away. It's a strange situation, considering all the ads on American TV about an energy shortage."

As a result of the surplus and the price-cutting, gasoline is selling at about five cents a gallon less than it was six months ago.

Two department stores, Woodward's and Simpsons-Sears, have cut the price of gas four cents a gallon to 57.9 cents. Imperial Oil's company-owned outlet at Hillside and Shelbourne has cut its price five cents to 59.9. Gulf Oil's company-owned stationed across the street reduced its price 3 cents to 59.9.

Some full-service stations run independently, noticeably the Mohawk chain, are selling as low as 58.9.

"Selling gasoline at such low prices is hurting the independent operator. It can't go on for very long," Dunsmuir says.

Better to improve service and make the station more attractive, he said.

"There are many ways to compete besides cutting prices."

Dunsmuir said the independent operators should follow the example of the oil companies and make certain their corner stations are well-lit, clean and not cluttered by miscellaneous cars parked on the lot.

Many corner stations are clean and attractive but others are not.

The small corner stations who will survive in the long run are those who can keep their customers regardless of price, Dunsmuir said.

Because they can't expect to win a price war with the self-service stations and the oil company retail outlets. The oil firms pay a lower wholesale price so their retail prices can be lower.

Dunsmuir said that not every closure of a corner service station is bad news for the consumer. Some stations are superfluous and others are environmental nuisances.

The majority of them, however, perform a needed service and in the long run they will keep the gas price moderate — if they can survive.

The Savagery in Sport: Part of a Sick Society

I go occasionally to the National League hockey games in Vancouver with an intelligent, mild-mannered friend who has season tickets and who, the moment the action begins, turns into a kind of monster.

This man's favorite bellow to the Canucks, whom he alternately worships and despises depending upon their performance, is the familiar cry: "Kill 'em." Though he's the gentlest of men he clearly delights in any fight between two or more players, particularly if one of his gladiators get in a telling punch.

I found myself thinking of this otherwise admirable fellow when I was reading about the case of Hunsberger and Magrum, the B.C. Lions football players who were fined in B.C. Supreme Court and banished by the team management as the result of singularly savage, unprovoked attacks on private citizens.

It's not my view that these brutish men can, in any way, claim any justification for their unprovoked assault on victims who, the evidence showed, had no chance whatever. Even the remark by the presiding judge — "They have been trained to inflict and take great physical punishment in a violent contact sport" — does not imply a link between their profession and a purely private act.

Yet seldom has there been a case that offered such an invitation to ponder the climate of violence in society as a whole and the feeling of shock when it is isolated and localized as it has been in this instance. What we accept every day of our lives we disown when it surfaces in our own backyard.

Television, it seems to me, is the accepted vehicle for public violence. Crime, in its most overt and sadistic terms, is its principal commodity. Our children are brought up, in their own living rooms, on a nightly entertainment diet of murder, rape, beatings, armed holdups, muggings and the rest. As parents, we sigh and condone it. Indeed, what was so shocking in the case of Hunsperger and Magrum is yawned over every night in millions of homes.

It is just as appalling that sports, once considered the one pursuit that invited fair play, is now mainly an outlet for hidden hostilities and aggressiveness. This is, of course, a worldwide phenomenon. Yet few other athletic endeavors contribute to the lust for violence as do the so-called Canadian national games — hockey and Canadian football. Those qualities that Hunsperger and Magrum displayed in their incomprehensive private fury are precisely the qualities that are admired and cheered to an echo in the stadium or arena, the qualities for which they were, in fact, hired.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, men and women who would be the first to abhor the savagery of these two players, go each week to watch contests in which the essential ingredient is force, in which few matches end without serious injury to one or more players.

In the playing of the Grey Cup, for example, it was crucial to injure a quarterback to win the game. Sports writers from coast to coast hailed the player who hurt him enough. In hockey the team with the greatest draw is a team of out-and-out ruffians; the most famous player is a man who can be counted on, at least once, to punch with maniacal pugnaciousness at the head of an opposing player.

Millions of other Canadians watch on prime-time television as these sadistic contests are played each week. In hockey we often see, through the camera's implacable eye, the blood upon the ice or the flare-up between two or more players usually repeated for the edification of the viewers. Howie Meeker and the rest of the commentators squeal their piggy admiration and assessment of fights that, if they happened on a streetcorner, would result in arrests and imprisonment.

These, remember, are our national sports, played by our children, and one result is that violence spreads downward through the amateur and semi-professional teams so that we are, in effect, rearing a new generation of sports enthusiasts who emulate the grim, win-at-any-price attitude of their heroes.

Like the formula in television, the link between the number of imbeciles who watch a given program, thus determining the sponsorship and the preferred time spots of shows such as Cannon, Police Woman, The Magician and the rest, so the promoters of professional sports have discovered that violence is the commodity that sells best. They are thus in the business of a mass audience blood-bath that realizes enormous profits.

It is only when this poses a threat to our personal lives, when we see what the admirable skills of two football players can mean when they're unleashed outside the playing field, that we may reflect for a moment on a sickness in society that goes unchecked.

'Vital, Lively' Programming CBC's Target

Requested architectural details were scant but programming information somewhat more helpful when two senior CBC officials today briefed city aldermen concerning plans for the proposed CBC radio-television station in Victoria.

The city's finance committee was told the radio operation, offering full-network AM service over the FM frequency, would provide about 37 hours of local community programming each week, while initially the television service would provide some 15 hours rising to 17 hours within the first three years.

Hugh Palmer, director of television for the CBC in Vancouver, said the main features of local content in both services would be regular "blocks" of information programming: on radio from 6 to 9 a.m., 1 to 2 p.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.; on television from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Both local community program blocks will have a resource base sufficient to ensure vital and lively programming with emphasis on local news, weather and features," he stated in a report.

"The latter will include community events, including activities from the legislature, sports and humor. We propose more than the usual amount of commentary analysis."

Last week Victoria city council tabled a motion to sell to the CBC for $500,000 a parcel of city-owned land on Blanshard between Hillside and Kings, until more information was forthcoming on the form of the proposed development.

Palmer and James Wighton, B.C regional engineer for the broadcasting authority, told aldermen today that plans for the production centre haven't been prepared but it will probably be a "low-rise" two-storey building providing about 36,000 square feet of studio and office space.

Its main features would include one two-camera television studio and two radio studios. Of the total expected investment of $5.8 million, the Blanshard site itself would account for about $5 million.

The corporation's plans are dependent on a successful application to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission for the use of Channel 10 for television programming. Competitors for the channel include the provincial government and private concerns.

Palmer said the Channel 10 television transmitter would be located on Saturna Island and the FM radio transmitter at or near Mount Work.

If the application to the CRTC is successful, he said it is expected both stations would be on the air within 26 to 30 months of receiving approval.

The radio station would have a staff of about 21 and the television station's personnel would number about 64.

Mayor Peter Pollen asked why a Victoria radio service would see the CBC relegated to the "obscurity" of FM, which is received by less than 10 per cent of the listening audience according to the CRTC's own figures.

Palmer replied that cost factors were largely responsible as the capital cost of setting up an AM station is roughly three times the cost of FM.

He also said FM is technically superior, adding: "In terms of buying habits the trend is already in favor of FM."

But Pollen said the higher capital cost would be worth it to ensure "20 times the audience."

UVic Senators Off To Stumbling Start

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

University of Victoria's monthly senate meeting stumbled to a slow start Wednesday, braked by a tedious discussion on the minutes of the last meeting.

Although the agenda was lighter than usual — UVic President Dr. Howard Petch announced last month that he hoped to pare down extraneous items and conduct meetings with dispatch — it was the agenda itself that sparked longest discussion.

Discussion dealt mainly with positioning items on the agenda, and the inevitable errors and ommisions in the minutes of the January meeting, which are not given the press.

He moved that senate scrap the circulation of minutes of the last meeting, which tend to prompt "anecdotal discussions."

Those discussions "don't pertain to the decision making of university policy and should be conducted with speed and dispatch," he said.

Young moved that senate circulate only a record of decisions which would effectively omit much of the excess bulk.

"That's the kind of attitude I deplore and I'd like it recorded" (in the minutes)," said Pal.

He argued the minutes were germaine to proper procedure, and corrections to the minutes mandatory.

Although Young's motion disappeared in the discussion without a final vote-taking, it was effective in moving the minds of senators on to new business. (The open session was conducted in only two hours.)

Warm Hawaii Storm

A warm storm from the Hawaiian Islands hit the Victoria area today and is expected to remain Friday, bringing milder temperatures, clouds and some rain.

Some parts of the Victoria area will see a bit of snow tonight, the weatherman said, but by Friday all precipitation should be in the form of rain.

Highs today were expected to reach near 40, and tomorrow they should be in the low 40s. Overnight lows will be in the low to mid 30s.

SCHIBLI ELECTED

Schibli's former position as first vice-president of the council was won by Jim Walker, president of Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Maurice Clayton of Local 258 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was elected second-vice-president and carpenters' union member Bill Weavers won the position of sergeant-at-arms.

Employers Predict Good Year

Greater Victoria employers predict 1975 will equal and possibly exceed last year's market performance, despite a bleak forecast for the construction industry, says Canada Manpower.

Stan Purdy, manager of the Victoria Manpower Centre, said Wednesday the January month-end survey of employers and employment conditions shows a buoyant economy, although some setbacks are occurring in other areas.

He said most retail merchants report sales are "very good" and in many cases show an improvement over last year.

"While the sales of major appliances, automobiles and other major goods have shown a decline in many areas, most Victoria dealers advise that they are pleased with the present sales picture.

"They do not foresee any change in the near future," Purdy said.

Job listings in the Manpower Job Information Centre number about 130 and a steady flow of about 30 listings are received daily from Victoria firms.

There are openings' for waiters, waitresses, day workers, auto mechanics, engineers and insurance salesmen.

Only gloomy forecast is in the construction industry, said Purdy.

"Local home-builders are not optimistic that 1975 will show any better performance than last year."

Purdy quoted figures compiled by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which show that only 2,630 housing units were started in 1974, compared to 4,013 in 1973, a decline of more than one third.

Builders report high construction costs and mortgage interest rates are placing new homes out of reach of buyers who have small down payments.

A slight decline is reported in mortgage rates and the money supply is reported adequate by local trust and mortgage companies.

Total real estate sales in the Victoria area during 1974 were $62.7 million and the industry anticipates 1975 will equal or exceed this figure.

Purdy feels it is too early to determine the effect of the current dispute between the municipalities and their workers. Any prolonged shutdown, however, is bound to affect the economic life of the community, he said.

Puccio and Garbanzo clowning away

These Little Clowns Stayed Home

Running away to join the circus is a fantasy entertained by many young people through the years.

Now they're Puccio and Garbanzo, the clowns; Professor Plum, juggler extraordinary; the six-legged Staggering Beauty and other beasts; and Doc Moon, the one-man lunar band.

The circus will be seen at Open Space, 510 Fort, Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Too-Quick Cousin

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been invited to a wedding. My husband is unable to attend, so I am taking my 16-year-old cousin. She does not know the bride.

At the last four weddings this cousin attended, she caught the bride's bouquet. Maybe I should tell you that she is very large and athletic girl who is fast on her feet.

I feel that because she is only 16, and she has already caught four bouquets, she should not make an all-out effort to catch this one.

No Bouquets For Nora

DEAR NO BOUQUETS: If you want to risk telling a "large, athletic girl who's fast on her feet" what to do, go ahead.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's driving. Whenever another motorist breaks one of the highway courtesy rules and cuts in front of my husband, or passes him when another car is coming in the opposite direction, my husband has to get back at him. He'll pull up real close to him, or he'll immediateely pass him to let him know that he is not going to let him get away with anything.

Sometimes he doesn't like the way a truck driver is driving, so he'll start playing games with him. I get scared half to death and beg him not to take such foolish chances, but he insists that he's going to teach them a lesson."

We've had a few minor scrapes and several close calls, but nothing really serious yet. He argues that he is a safe driver, but to me, that's not safe. What's the matter with this 33-year-old baby? How can I make him realize that that kind of driving is not safe?

Worried

DEAR WORRIED: Part of my definition for maturity is . . . "the ability to bear an injustice without wanting to get even." Your husband isn't mature. Just keep on nagging him to let the other guy have the road — unless he's trying to beat him to the cemetery, and take you with him.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a healthy young man, married one month, who says to his bride: "I won't bother you very often for sex. I want a pal, not a sweetheart?"

And lived up to it, too. — Not Bothered.

DEAR NOT: He may be "healthy," but your marriage is sick. Tell him that you didn't get married to live with a "pal" — and unless he tries to fulfill his role as a husband, as far as you're concerned, the marriage won't work. If he wants to be a husband, but can't he should see a doctor. If he just plain doesn't want to, you should see a lawyer.

'Freak' Wants Book on Manners

By ALICE N. RIVLIN

WASHINGTON (WP) — When my children were small, they had a book called "What Do You Say, Dear?" which was meant to teach manners by showing children giving conventionally polite responses in fanciful situations. (The prince has just saved you from the dragon. What do you say, dear? Answer: Thank You very much.) I wish someone would write a similar book to help the business and professional woman deal with the small daily dilemmas of being a freak in a male-dominated world.

I haven't thought much about manners in a long time. Mother's rules were simple: try to make other people feel comfortable. Don't be pushy or nasty. Above all, never make a scene. Her rules involved lying a little (thanking Aunt Emma for the book you'd already read), but they worked. I always knew what I was supposed to say.

Now I don't.

Item: In a small meeting of academics, a man I've known for years passes me a note that reads, "I've never understood how a goodlooking woman like you could be so smart." Should I smile or scowl?

Item: I give a speech in another city. A man I know by reputation gushes that he is so glad to meet me because he has read my stuff and he assumed I would wear a tight bun and sensible shoes. (A U.S. senator once told me he expected someone, well, "chunkier.")

It should be explained that the author is a 43-year-old economist who is slightly overweight and never was a campus queen. These men are simply saying that they expect a competent professional woman to be downright ugly and are surprised when she is only average.

Moreover, they are sure I will be delighted to hear how surprised they are. I'm not pleased, of course, but mother's rules say: smile. Don't hurt the man's feelings when he thinks he's said something nice.

If I do that, however, I'll keep his silly stereotype intact and he'll say the same thing to someone else, and if I growl at him I'll reinforce his other stereotype — successful women are aggressive and unpleasant.

Item: Government officials call to set up an urgent meeting on the problem. Professor Jones is coming, as is the distinguished Dr. Smith. They especially want me. Because I have such good ideas? Alas, no — because they don't have a woman in the group and they need the "female point of view."

Should I coo sweetly that I'd love to come (or that I'm terribly sorry I have another commitment) and leave him under the impression that I was flattered that a mere woman would be included? Or should I say something smart-alecky ("nine out of 10 women think the X problem is insoluble") and convince him I'm a shrew?

Item: I'm invited to a small meeting at a downtown club and discover, after I get there, that women have to sneak in a back entrance or, worse, are not admitted at all. Do I assure my host that it doesn't matter? Or do I make a scene, guaranteeing that he remembers to have the meeting somewhere else next time — or not ask any females?

Item: I am lunching, at my invitation, with a man whose advice I am seeking. He grabs the check, which is easy because the waiter put it on his side of the table. I protest that it was my idea, so let's at least split the check. He couldn't do that; it was his privilege to lunch with a lovely lady. The dear man thinks he is being polite, not patronizing. Am I simply to swallow my irritation?

The men I work with are mostly middle-aged intellectuals who consider themselves cosmopolitan, enlightened and certainly not sexist. Only a few say overtly insulting things, like the academic who urged me to apply for a minor administrative post at his third-rate university because "they want a woman and it's an awfully important job to consider a woman for."

But most of these men have dealt with women only as wives, mothers, girl friends or professional subordinates. Meeting a woman as a professional equal seems to make them uncomfortable and self-conscious.

A few respond by pretending she isn't there — raising their voices and talking only to each other. The only way to handle that is to be a "pushy female" and keep butting in until they can't ignore you.

But most respond with exaggerated politeness — the way sighted people are overly polite to the blind — which is harder to handle. As a woman biochemist said to me recently: It is tiresome being a freak.

I suppose the next generation has all this sorted out. I hope so. But mine needs guidance. What do I say, dear?

'Breakthrough Near' On Synthetic Eye

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Synthetic eyes patterned after the light panels on space vehicles may help some blind persons see, says a researcher at the University of Florida.

Dr. Williams Dawson, director of the sight laboratory, says it is a tough project, but he is optimistic that researchers are near a breakthrough.

Dawson said scientists at the university have been working to duplicate the retina, perhaps the most crucial part of the eye. The eye's cornea and lenses already have been duplicated, he said. An entire synthetic eye may be developed in six to eight years, he said.

The retina, the eye's innermost portion, is the "seeing" instrument. It focuses light rays and transmits them to the brain. Retinal disease and damage account for about 20 per cent of all blindness and are usually incurable, Dawson said.

But he said research by the Gainesville team has shown that it takes only a very small electric current to prompt the undamaged portion of the retina to send visual messages to the brain.

A tiny electrode placed on the eye's outer surface can transmit electrical currents to inner layers and cause a blind person to see light, Dawson said.

DEPRESSION YEARS to Edith Swanson, 65, meant riding in boxcars, living in tents or cars and helping her husband scrape together a few cents each day for food for themselves and their three sons. But she looks back on those years as "good time."

Scouts Return From Camp

Forty-three Venturers, Scout and Venturer Leaders from many parts of B.C. returned recently from a three-day winter campaigning and survival course on top of Silver Star mountain near Vernon.

Led by Jock Norman of Victoria and John Spencer of Kamloops, the trek was sponsored by the Interior Region Council, Boy Scouts of Canada, and attracted participants from Victoria, Vernon, Penticton, Summerland, Kamloops and Revelstoke.

Carrying 40-pound pack sacks and wearing snowshoes the survival party was carried by chairlift to the top of Silver Star mountain in 30-below temperatures (Fahrenheit) which was further compounded by winds which developed wind chill exposure to 60 below zero.

The party hiked to an area on the far side of the mountain where shovels were provided to dig-in the snow for a night's shelter. Overnight the weather warmed up to five below zero and snowed six inches. Each group of six people set up their own shelter style and set about the task of providing hot meals with small gas stoves plus getting a fire going with basically green jack pine to provide some warmth, and all this on top of eight to 10 feet of snow. Each person was alert for the danger signs of hypothermia developing.

Although shelters were dug six feet down in the snow and reflector fires built to ease the intense cold conditions two leaders suffered badly from frostbite of the feet and had to be escorted from camp for further medical attention.

This was the eleventh camp of this type conducted by Norman, and further such camps are programmed for Venturers in the Greater Victoria Region, Boy Scouts of Canada, using some high mountain areas on Vancouver Island.

Participating from Victoria were Doug Lewis, Regional Commissioner; Peter Atkin, Regional Vice-President; Jock Norman, and Leaders Chris Elford, Earl Dalton, Stephen Reynolds, Joel Cotter, Carol Fawcett, and Gail Vickars.

Thieves Loot Five Offices

Thieves broke into five offices in a business building at 602 Broughton this week and took an IBM typewriter and more than 50 other items worth a total $1,125 from one office.

Victoria police said losses from other offices were minor.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Feb. 7
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): One who appreciates your talents, special qualities speaks up in your behalf. A change is upcoming and you could be beneficiary. There are legal technicalities. Be patient, thorough — don't promise more than can be delivered.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make gesture that brings you closer to "special person." Don't permit pride to block progress. Give and take is called for — in diplomatic manner. Long-range view is necessary if you are not to avoid eventual setback. Another Taurus — and a Libran — could figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): See as is, not merely through rose-colored glasses. Means you tend now to perceive what you wish could be. That might be a dangerous game. Avoid tendency to fool yourself. Accent is on financial status of one who makes claims, promises — and could ask you to make sacrifice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Gemini message for valid hint. Be aware of legal consequences of any action. You have plenty of responsibility, both personal and professional. That is fine — unless someone is failing to carry their fair share.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get rid of someone else's headache. Message should be startlingly clear. You seem to insist on buying or borrowing trouble — not of your own making. Best to finish rather than to begin, to complete and to let go of past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emotions tend to dominate. Leo, Aquarius could be in picture. Accent is on love, affection and a need for personal recognition. Maintain independent stance while avoiding arrogance. Line in this area is fine and you can walk it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pay attention to hunch. Also, listen to one who taught you in past. Line is open for knowledge which can work to your definite advantage. You may be tearing down for purpose of rebuilding — but don't go in for wholesale destruction. You'll understand!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Forces tend to be scattered. You may want to expand too much, too soon. Key is to build on solid base — and to be thorough. Fun is fun — but a time does come when game playing is finished. Know it and act like you are apprised of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get money surprise — and it is to your advantage. One who sang song of gloom and doom may be forced to change tune. You will revise some of your own opinions. You can mature, grow and build a relationship that is constructive — and loving.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cycle is such that you can be forthright, independence and expect to gain by so doing. Means now is time to assert yourself. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Partner, mate has tale of woe. Be patient and do not lose sense of humor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Go slow. Refuse to be tripped up by the "unknown." Means take nothing for granted. Some persons have expensive tastes — and are willing to indulge themselves — at your risk. Know it and make clear fact that you are generous but not to point of foolishness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Friends, hopes, wishes are shaken — means that area of lifestyle is subject to abrupt change. You are selective because you now become more sensitive to actual needs. Another Pisces — and a Virgo — are likely to be in picture.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, introspective, have knack for understanding complicated legal, moral questions. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles in your life. In October, be prepared for significant change which extricates you from emotional rut. April could be your most important month of 1975. You do not follow crowd. You often are lonely in midst of many persons. You are special, unique and temperamental.

Early Retirement Is Easy; All You Need Is Money

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Early retirement is an extremely expensive proposition if you want to maintain your present standard of living.

An income of $1,000 a month will pay the rent and leave a little over for travel and other fun. At least it will in 1975.

A man, aged 50, looking forward to retiring at age 60, however, will have to figure how to prepare for a monthly income of $1,629 starting in 1985, to have the same purchasing power he has today.

This assumes an annual five per cent increase in the cost of living.

An annuity paying $1,629 a month for 10 years would cost $173,489, according to insurance company calculations.

This means the 50-year-old would have to raise $173,489 in the next 10 years to achieve his goal. That isn't easy for the average man.

He wouldn't have to put aside $17,300 a year. But he would have to save $11,735 per year for 10 years which (based on an average interest of 7 per cent) would give him the required total by 1985.

That is still beyond the reach of the majority of wage-earners.

A man 45, for example, aiming at retirement at age 60, would have to put aside $8,235 a year to reach his goal. This would give him $221,414 by 1990 and would pay $2,079 per month or about the same amount of goods this year (assuming an average increase of 5 per cent in the cost of living).

At age 40, the annual saving needed is $6,441. This buys a monthly pension of $2,653 starting in 1995 or the equivalent of $1,000 in 1975.

A man of 35 would have to save $5,328 a year to get $3,386 a month starting in the year 2000 while a 30-year-old would have to save $4,554 per year until 2005 to begin getting $4,322 a month, the equivalent of $1,000 in 1975.

In each case, the annual savings required are far beyond the reach of most people.

The figures demonstrate how the ravages of even a moderate rate of inflation can demolish any reirement savings plan, reducing the pensioner to a subsistence level.

There is no permanent defence against inflatiion but there are a few things that can be done to reduce its devastating effects.

For example, the man age 40 who has to put aside $6,441 per year might make a concerted effort to pay off his mortgage and not refinance it as many homeowners do.

Assuming his mortgage payments are $300 a month, he would have to save only $4,509 per year instead of $6,441 to retire at age 60 with the same purchasing power he has today.

This is based upon the calculation that given a 5 per cent annual increase in the cost of living, the same accommodation at retirement in 1995 would have cost him $795 a month in rent or in a refinance mortgage.

Assuming he enters retirement with his house fully furnished and most of his clothing purchased for the subsequent 10 years, he could knock another 10 per cent off his expenses.

This brings his annual savings requirement down to $3,865 which is almost within reason. And it is also a rock bottom low figure to provide the equivalent of what today's $1,000 a month would buy.

The figures do not take into account any amounts supplemented by governments in various pension plans. However, the present policies of governments is to provide very little assistance to persons of independent means.

To qualify for full government assistance, a family will have to have no resources of its own. It is certain that government help, even at its maximum amount, will be barely above the subsistence level.

What the figures do most vividly is demonstrate that to retire early in the manner the average person would like will be far more expensive than it seems.

Two Birthday Celebrations With Haggis and the Pipes

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Last weekend I was present at two Scottish gatherings. Both were planned to mark anniversaries — the first to commemorate the birth of Scotland's bard, Robert Burns, and the second to celebrate the birthday of Dame Flora MacLeod of MacLeod.

Burns, as I imagine every Scot knows, was born on January 25, 1759, and died on July 21, 1796.

In his short lifetime he wrote the kind of poetry that drew to him all hearts of his countrymen and posthumously made him a kind of demigod.

So much so, in fact, that down the years since he lived, his memory has been kept green by Scots around the world in what has become known as Burn's Nicht, held yearly on or as near as possible to the 25th of January.

The gathering I attended last Friday was in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Kirk hall, where every man and youth who owned one (including Rev. Bruce Molloy) wore the kilt.

There was the traditional grand entrance of the haggis, proceded by the bagpipes and a sword bearer, followed by an address to "the great Chieftain o' the puddin' race!" presented by K. Burns, and with the dramatic slashing of the succulent sausage-like haggis with the sword.

Toast to "The Immortal Memory" was given by Dr. Hugh MacConachie and before we sat down to a dinner of bubbly-jock (turkey), neeps (turnip), tatties (potatoes) and shortbreads, we heard the Selkirk Grace.

Following dinner there came a delightful program of Scottish dancing and songs.

Finally the floor was cleared and the evening ended with grandparents, parents, teenagers and children joining in reels and other dances dear to the Scots.

With me sitting on the sidelines, tapping my canes to the music, and silently wishing I could join in.

The MacLeod gathering was held in Holyrood House on Sunday evening, where 90 clan members and friends gathered for a smorgasbord dinner and to honor their Chief on the eve of her birthday.

Again the kilt was in evidence. Again there was a program of songs and dances arranged by Jeffery Kerr.

Robin MacLeod, president of the Clan MacLeod Society of Vancouver Island, chaired the gathering and his father, Major Charles MacLeod, who was instrumental in organizing the society, 20 years ago, proposed a toast to the Chief.

Arthur MacLeod Rogers, president of the National Council of Clan MacLeod Societies of Canada, who is spending the winter in Victoria, spoke briefly.

A surprise number on the program was a sketch, written by the national president, entitled Peace in the Prairies.

It presented an historic scene in which Chief Crowfoot and Chief Red Crow of the Blackfoot Nation, along with Commissioner James Farquharson MacLeod of the Northwest Mounted Police and Hon. David Laird, Lieutenant-Governor of the Northwest Territories, jointly signed a treaty in which the Indians surrendered their prairie lands to Queen Victoria "the Great White Mother."

Going back to the reason for the gathering, Dame Flora MacLeod of MacLeod, was born on February 3, 1878, not as you might think, in Dunvegan Castle, ancestral home of the clan on Isle of Skye, but — of all places — in Number 10 Downing Street, London, England.

You see, her mother, Agnes MacLeod, was a daughter of Sir Stafford Northcote, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Beaconsfield government.

Lord Beaconsfield, then British Prime Minister, was a widower with no children. The Northcotes, living next door, in Number 11 Downing Street, had a large family. So the two men who were great friends exchanged homes with Beaconsfield going to the smaller No. 11 and Northcote to No. 10.

As with many another young wife of that era, Agnes baby born in her parents' home.

In late January, 1878, she went there from a small furnished house in Hobart Place where she and he husband, Sir Reginald MacLeod, had started married life. And it was in No. 10 Downing Street that a fair-haired, blue-eyed baby girl, destined one day to be the 28th Chief of the MacLeod Clan, was born.

You'll find all this in detail in a book entitled Dame Flora, and published just before Christmas.

Maternity Care Meeting Feb. 11

A group of women wanting to keep family-centred maternity care alive in Victoria hospitals have organized a public meeting for Feb. 11 at 8 p.m. in Newcombe Auditorium.

The meeting is sponsored by the Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) but mothers and nurses not members of SWAG are active in planning the meeting, organizer Dianne Grimmer said today.

Grimmer said SWAG hopes to provide some input from parents and consumers into the considerations now being made by the Hospital and Health Planning Commission, the new agency planning all regional hospital development.

Robert Wallace, commission chairman, has been invited to the meeting, as has Regional Hospital Board chairman Art Young. Neither has yet confirmed they are coming.

Two physicians, Dr. Basil Boulton and Dr. Michael Bassett, will be among panelists at the meeting.

Kathleen Gilchrist, a nurse who teaches a family-oriented method of birth at Victoria General Hospital, will also be on the panel, along with Philippa Kerr, nursing consultant for the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Parents Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Berezowski will talk about their two children, one born in a regular hospital and the second born in the family-oriented system at Victoria General.

Grimmer said SWAG is concerned that the planning commission remember to provide a choice of maternity care in the region for mothers, and not eliminate the family-oriented method now being chosen by some parents.

In this method the father can be present during the birth of the child, and both parents are able to help care for the child during his hospital stay.

Puppet Performances Set

Puppetry sponsored by the Greater Victoria Public Library will be shown in three locations this month.

Jack and the Beanstalk and Peter Rabbit will make up the shows, to be performed first at 4 p.m. Feb. 20 at Esquimalt Recreation Centre.

The same show will be on at Oak Bay's library branch Feb. 22 and 10:30 a.m. with a repeat performance that day at 2:30 p.m. at the Saanich-Victoria branch.

Children of all ages are invited free of charge.

Film Showings Scheduled At Area Branch Library

Jane Goodall and the Wild Chimpanzees will start the first day's showings at 11 a.m., telling the story of an English girl and her adventures in East Africa.

Second film that day will be a colorful, animated one from Czechoslovakia about a tap-dancing caterpillar. A folk tale from the Congo will be third on the list.

Laurel and Hardy will begin the program Feb. 22 with The Music Box. An African odyssey called The Red Bicycle will be next, and a tale of a family that raises wild geese will be third, called Fly, Geese, Fly.

On March 1 a Cambodian jungle adventure about a boy and an elephant will be first on the list of films.

Hans Christian Andersen's The Steadfast Tin Soldier will follow, with Pete Seeger's Foolish Frog last.

All showings will begin at 11 a.m., no admission will be charged, and all children are welcome.

CIA Work Order On Canada—PC

OTTAWA (UPI) — Conservative member of parliament Perrin Beatty said Wednesday in the House of Commons that he has obtained a copy of a CIA "work order" seeking secret data on Canadian transport systems.

He said the document, dated last Nov. 26 and signed by John C. Dougherty, CIA-Washington, was sent by Sen. Richard Schweicker, R — Pa.

"The work contemplated includes utilization of classified information at the top secret, compartmented level . . . the contractor will, by conducting this over-all analysis, identify the programs most likely to impact on, or compete with U.S. economic developments in air transport systems. . . ."

Beatty said that besides Canada, other CIA targets include Great Britain, France, West Germany, Japan and the Soviet Union.

The alleged order specifies information "for each country identified as representing potential technological and-or economic threats to the U.S. position."

It also says that the project is to be conducted only by U.S. citizens and then only on a "need to know" basis. It did not name the agents involved in the alleged activities.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen ordered a full investigation into the charges. He said he would soon report back to the house.

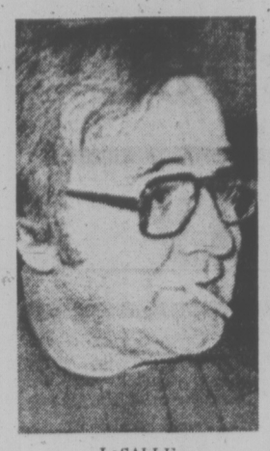
MAIL UNION CLEARS WAY FOR ACCORD

OTTAWA (CP) — The last classification hurdle which could have blocked a contract settlement between 16,000 letter carriers and treasury board has been overcome, the Letter Carriers Union of Canada said Wednesday.

The union now is negotiation a new contract with the government and has reported to its members that several non-monetary issues have been resolved.

Through meetings between the union and post office officials under mediator Eric Taylor, relief mail truck drivers have been reclassified upward, the union said. The reclassification will mean more money.



LaSALLE

Reporter Bribing Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — Roch LaSalle (PC—Joliette) denied before a parliamentary committee Wednesday that he ever has paid reporters for news coverage.

"I never offered a nickle to reporters," he told the Commons privileges and elections committee investigating allegations that politicians bribe reporters.

The charges were made in December by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette who admitted paying two reporters and said he suspected LaSalle and other MPs of doing the same.

LaSalle said the suggestion is absurd. It was made in connection with publicity given to him when he violated Commons dress rules by appearing without a tie.

It would be impossible to pay all the newspapers carrying accounts of the incident, he said, adding that he knows of no MPs who bribe reporters.

The committee agreed to invite Caouette as the next witness but there appeared to be little interest in forcing him to do so if he refuses. The Social Credit leader did not attend the meeting. He would not say later whether he will appear.

He has said previously he will not disclose the names of reporters he says he bribed, or testify before the committee.

Tough Jail Sentences Not the Answer: Lang

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Being tough and keeping everyone in jail may be the easy way out, but it won't solve law enforcement problems, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday.

He made the statement in answer to a demand by Calgary Tory MP Eldon Woolliams for a Royal commission to investigage the increasing crime rate and recommend improvements to the parole system in Canada.

Woolliams said in the Commons that the government's failure to enforce the law is demoralizing society and police forces.

He referred specifically to cabinet's failure to allow murderers of police and prison guards to be executed.

A Royal commission should be set up to make sure that the parole system established under Prime Minister Diefenbake is not destroyed, he claimed.

Lang replied that parole and day pass procedures and rehabilitation of offenders are being given constant attention while Ottawa and the provinces are studying the over-all question of law enforcement improvement.

"I am confident that we can make progress in improving our legal and rehabilitation processes without taking the easy way out of suggestion that simply being tough and keeping everyone in jail all the time is really the solution to these problems," the minister stated.

Woolliams argued that crime didn't increase under the Diefenbaker administration and questioned the government's commutation since 1968 of nine sentences of death for police and prison guard slayers.

Under the partial ban on capital punishment extended by Parliament last year only this type of murder is punishable by death.

Lang retorted that cabinet has the obligation to consider each case on its merits.

Hunt Denies Role in CIA Scheme To Assassinate JFK

SINCLAIR

MIAMI — E. Howard Hunt denied Wednesday that he was part of an alleged Central Intelligence Agency plot to assassinate John Kennedy.

A spokesman for Frank Sturgis, also a convicted Watergate conspirator, said it was not Sturgis in a photograph said to show Hunt and Sturgis near the assassination scene in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. The spokesman would neither confirm nor deny if Sturgis was in Dallas on the day of Kennedy's death.

Sinclair testified he made a $1,000 bet with Toronto mortgage broker Dennis Barron that the Dow Jones stock average would not drop below 800 in 1973.

Sinclair said he refused to pay the final $250 of the bet but did not say why. Judge Carroll ruled a wager could not be enforced in court.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A female toll collector who was fired for making love with a truck driver in a collection booth on the Pennsylvania turnpike cannot get back pay for the time she was off, according to a court ruling. The woman, identified in the court opinion only as Ms. X, was observed with the trucker on Nov. 25, 1972. She was fired four days later for "behavior unbecoming an employee." She later was reinstated but was refused back pay. Her union had appealed.

TORONTO — Elwood Glover, host for the last 11 years of Luncheon Date with Elwood Glover, will end his television show after the summer, a CBC-TV official said Wednesday. Glover said he finds "the preparation effort becoming too great and I would now like to take things a little easier, although I intend to continue in broadcasting, which has been so good to me."

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa — A member of the Zulu royal family, Ephraim Zithundu Zulu, has died at an estimated age of 130 at his nearby village, it was reported Wednesday. His son Ruben says his father was a married man with children at the time of the surrender of Zulu Chief Dinizulu to the British administration here in 1888.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Sherlock Holmes received an honorary degree Wednesday — for his contributions to the "art and science of sleuthing." Colorado state university president A. R. Chamberlain presented the degree to the mythical detective at the end of a four-day symposium of Holmes and his creator, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. It possibly was the first awarded to a fictional character.

WINNIPEG — A university professor says meditation can enhance learning and should be used in the classroom. Mark Novak, professor of education at University of Winnipeg, said Wednesday the practice of meditation should be optional but studies have shown results to be very positive.

LOS ANGELES — Louis Jordan, who wrote comic pop tunes that were big hits in the 1930s and 1940s, is dead.

Jordan's band, the Tympany Five, recorded five records that sold more than a million copies, including Ain't Nobody Home But Us Chickens, and Is You Is Or Is You Ain't My Baby.

Ailing Onassis Flown To Paris

ATHENS — Ailing shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis will be flown today to Paris, where he will enter a private clinic, sources close to the Onassis family said.

* * *

The decision to move the 69-year-old multi-millionaire was made by French heart specialist Jacques Caroli, who arrived in Athens Wednesday, they said.

Both Onassis' wife Jacqueline and his daughter Christina will fly with him.

Sources close to the family also said Wednesday that the tycoon had been put in an oxygen tent.

* * *

Onassis has suffered a relapse of Myasthenia, a disease that weakens the muscles, aggravated by a virus infection and a cold he caught last week.

"Doctors are concerned and so are we," Mrs. Artemis Garoufalidis, elder sister of Onassis, said Wednesday.

Mosquitoes Face Doom

The mosquito population in the Island View beach area should be reduced this summer as improved drainage ditches begin to show results, Ald. Percy Lazarz told Central Saanich council Monday.

Within two years the mosquito problem should be under control, he said.

Lazarz said mosquito larvae can lie on wet ground up to four years before emerging as adult mosquitoes, so the area must be kept dry several years to completely lick the problem.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is no doubt but that of the three departments of bridge—bidding, declarer's play, and defensive play—the most difficult to master is defenders' play. Thus it is always an extreme pleasure to me to observe a deal in which the defenders cooperate beautifully to defeat an apparently impregnable contract. Such was the case in todya's deal.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

Opening lead: King of ♦.

On West's opening lead of the diamond king, East initiated a high-low signal by playing the nine-spot. When West continued with diamond ace, trick three, West led the diamond jack, the deuce of clubs being discarded from dummy. East discarded the club eight, denoting club strength.

Had West now cashed the club ace, and followed up by leading the nine of clubs to East's king, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. Whatever East now played back, declarer would capture. He would then pick up the adversely-held trumps in three rounds, and claim his contract.

But West, who happened to be the late Helen Sobel, one of thegreatest players the world has ever known, did not lead ace of clubs at trick four. From East's discard of the club eight, it certainly appeared to her that East possessed the king of clubs. And if East also had the ten of trumps, she perceived that she could defeat the contract.

At trick four, Mrs. Sobel led the nine of clubs, underleading her ace! The trick was won by East's king, after which East returned a club to played the three of diamonds.

Declarer was now doomed to defeat. He discarded the deuce of spaces from dummy, as East ruffed the trick with his ten-spot. Of course declarer overruffed with his queen, but no matter how he played the hand from here in, Mrs. Sobel, with the tripleton J-8-6 of trumps remaining, could not be prevented from making a trump trick, for the setting trick.

Will you not agree that Mrs. Sobel's imaginative play was a thing of beauty?

GARDENING

Don't Let Setbacks Beet You

Beets are not the easiest vegetable to grow since any condition, soil or weather, which causes a set-back in growth affects the quality of the crop and is responsible for those white rings the gardener associates with "woody roots."

Most varieties of beet mature in 45 days (4 to 6 weeks), some requiring immediate lifting to prevent splitting and woody centres, others better able to withstand another two weeks in the soil.

The home gardener does best when he uses succession sowings, a short row every three weeks rather than three long rows of which 75 per cent will be discarded.

Today's catalogues list many differences in color of flesh, such as brilliant, bright red, crimson, magenta, blood-red, black-red, and purple-red. The fact that all are good table beets shows that color is no longer a measure of quality.

Recent introductions include varieties which retain their size and texture for a considerable time after maturity and are slow to bolt to seed. These are worth trying.

The amount of top growth (leaves) is also variable. If you enjoy beet tops choose a large leaved variety, not a "short-top" nor a "bunching" variety.

Golden Beet, 50 days, are of interest to the home gardener. The tender golden roots do not bleed like red beet, develop rapidly, retaining their sweetness and not becoming fibrous or woody as they increase in size. Tops are excellent for salads, or cooked like spinach.

How many gardeners grow the Winter Beet? This is a long season beet, 78 days to maturity, which is harvested in the fall and stored for winter. It is highly recommended for the home garden, and should be sown 10 weeks before the expected date for harvesting.

Roots are long and rough-surfaced, deep red flesh, and distinctive light green tops which some gardeners declare to be tops for cooking.

Beet seed is comparatively large making it easy to sow thinly, but most beginners are puzzled when four or five seedlings appear where only one seed was dropped.

This happens because the seed, as we call it, is a capsule containing several seeds, most of which germinate. The newer Mono-germ beets have been developed to produce only one plant to a seed, thus eliminating labor costs for thinning in commercial fields.

But we are not so concerned about thinning costs in the home garden. We try to sow thinly so that the seedlings can develop a small root, then use the thinnings, root and tops, as a delicious vegetable either cooked or chopped into a salad.

Beet need a well prepared soil and a soil temperature between 7 and 20 degs. C (45 to 70 degs. F) to germinate in the required 4 to 10 days without rotting.

This means that local gardeners have to wait until June in the average season before the soil is near the required temperature.

Sowing too early in too cool a soil is the main reason for poor germination, slow growth, sudden bolting to seed with a rise in temperature, woody texture and lack of the characteristic sweetness.

The winter storage beet should be sown here about mid-June for an early September harvesting date, which would be necessary in low lying gardens subject to early frosts.

The roots contain a fair amount of vitamin A and B2, and are high in B1. The tops are considered a nourishing form of greens, extremely high in Vitamin A, high in C, with calcium and iron in addition.

FANTASTIC HOME!
FANTASTIC VIEWS!
FANTASTIC VALUE!

First time listed, still under construction, this is the home for the artistically inclined individualist with the courage to be different! About 2900 sq. ft. of finished living area on a high wooded and rocky location of just under three acres and offering COMPLETE PRIVACY, MAGNIFICENT VIEWS OF THE STRAITS AND OLYMPICS and space to breath! The home is quite contemporary, on a well thought-out three-level plan, built largely of heavy custom cut CEDAR and PLATE GLASS! Decor is to match it with a gigantic floor-to-ceiling fireplace (with Danish built-in sunken lounge), lovely Oak and WALL-TO-WALL FLOORS, huge CERAMIC TILE baths with recessed tubs, gigantic SUNDECKS, solarium, music balcony and much more, difficult to describe. 30 minutes from town. THIS HAS TO BE SEEN! LIVE IN A GLASS HOUSE WITH 100% PRIVACY! UNMATCHABLE AT THE $185,000 ASKING PRICE. See the plans in my office or better still let me make an appointment to show you.

AT 94, NOWHERE TO GO . . .

VANCOUVER (CP) — Residents of five city-owned houses facing demolition so the sites can be developed for parkland, fear that they will not find other places to live.

Residents include pensioners Bertha Wilson, 94, who has lived in her apartment for six years and Rose Slingsby, 85, who has lived in hers for seven.

"I'm an old, old woman," Mrs. Wilson said after the parks committee voted this week to demolish the houses. "I don't know where to go. I think it's a shame. It would be hard for me to get another place. I have nowhere to go."

Mrs. Slingsby agreed.

"I think it's a crime to pull this place down. There are 11 families here. Where are they going to find other accommodation with the present housing situation?"

The houses have been rented on short-term leases since they were bought as part of a long-range city policy of eventually acquiring all property on the street for parkland.

Others Pulled Down As Firm Dies

STEWART (CP) — The near economic collapse of Twin Valley Contracting Ltd., a logging firm in this northwestern British Columbia community, threatens the financial stability of about 20 sub-contractors, company official said Wednesday.

Twin Valley president Dan Derbyshire said the firm is struggling to avert bankruptcy following the Jan. 24 cancellation of a contract to cut timber used by Canadian Cellulose Ltd.

Derbyshire, in a letter mailed to creditors this week, said his company has been logging in the Meziadin Lake area, about 49 miles from here, on a contract with Twin River Timber Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of CanCel.

A Dec. 21 profit-loss statement showed a net loss of $152,000 for eight months operations.

Derbyshire said he appealed to Twin River timber and the provincial government to reconsider the terms of a contract awarded to Twin Valley last July.

Financial assistance was rejected and the contract, for $31 a 100 cubic feet of wood, was revoked on the grounds his company was insolvent, he said.

Twin Valley employed 70 people including 40 boomers, fallers and woodsmen subcontractors. Almost all have been laid off.

PAIR LOSE BAIL BID

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Bail applications have been refused two men charged with plotting the murder of a Kamloops woman.

Dock Talks Impasse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations between 4,000 British Columbia longshoremen and the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association reached an impasse Wednesday.

Alex Cregan, a spokesman for the association, said negotiations had not broken off and both sides were reviewing their positions.

The union could not be contaced for comment. The union has already approved strike action. The last contract expired Dec. 31. The employers have offered an average increase of $1.15 an hour. The union had asked for a $1.50-an-hour increase.

Dump Hassles Send Trucks Elsewhere

At least one refuse collection firm is using a private garbage dump in order to avoid confrontation with pickets at Hartland road dump which is owned by the Capital Regional District.

The regional district is among municipal employers who have locked out staff in their dispute with Canadian Union of Public Employees, which initiated strike action Jan. 27 in Local 50, City of Victoria outside workers.

Cypress Disposal Ltd., which lists Greater Victoria School district among its clients, said today it had switched to an undisclosed alternative site because it has no wish to fight with CUPE and will not cross picket lines.

Some other private disposal operators have adopted a similar attitude and are refusing to go through the picket being maintained by the Saanich CUPE Local 374 at Hartland Road.

Since the regional district acquired the Hartland site from its former owner Victoria Disposal Co. Ltd.—which remains the operator—other garbage dumps in the region were closed, leaving as the only alternative the use of private land not recognized for the purpose.

Jim Walker, president of Local 50 and chairman of the regional CUPE bargaining group, said the union is aware of the Cypress arrangement but has not determined as yet where the garbage is being dumped. He said it is believed an excavating contractor is providing a site.

Meanwhile CUPE today underlined its picketing policy, embodying the right to inform the public of its legal strike-lockout position. Walker said pickets have the right to tell drivers intending to enter the dump of their purpose, but not to detain or obstruct traffic on the public road.

Wednesday there were brushes between pickets and garbage truck drivers, pickets blocked the road with a pick-up truck and in one case a picket was bruised by a truck.

Walker said there are "a lot people who respect the line and take off." Police have been watching the picket line.

Effectiveness of the picket policy showed up today when B.C. Hydro agreed to re-route buses from Esquimalt Road to Bay Street in order to avoid crossing a CUPE line at Johnson Street lift bridge.

The Esquimalt and Colville-Munro routes are the only two affected, Hydro said, adding that the situation would be reviewed later today.

CUPE requested the Amalgamated Transportation union

OWNER BEWARE!

ARVADA, Colo. (AP) — Owners of pets that stray in this Denver suburb had better watch out. A drafting error in the city's animal control ordinance, just noticed, provides that if a stray pet picked up by the city is not claimed by its owner within 24 hours, the owner will be destroyed.

IRA Threat Puts Dublin in Huddle

Times News Services

DUBLIN — Premier Liam Cossgrave called a special cabinet meeting today, the second within 12 hours, to discuss a threat by the Irish republican Army to assassinate two cabinet ministers if any of the imprisoned 15 IRA hunger strikers die.

"They will review the whole security situation in the light of the latest developments," a government source said.

Details of threat came after members of the parliamentary Labor party were briefed privately Wednesday by Justice Minister Patrick Cooney, on the hunger strike situation.

The Labor party sources said that Cooney had indicated the IRA warning was transmitted to the government 10 days ago. Separate messages have been carried to the government by two groups of intermediaries. Both groups said they had been requested by the provisionals to tell the government that if any hunger striker died, two ministers would be killed.

Members of the provisional Sein Fein, the IRA's legal political wing, mounted pickets on the Dublin headquarters of all the main political parties in support of the hunger strikes Wednesday.

In Northern Ireland, A gunman burst into the Shankill Road headquarters of the protestant west Belfast Ulster defence association today and shot and wounded West Belfast UDA leader Charles Harding Smith in the abdomen and shoulder.

The body of a young woman was found shot twice through the head on a country road outside Larne, 25 miles northeast of Belfast today. Police said they had not yet identified the woman and could not say whether it was a sectarian killing.

PM OFFERS BIG SPLASH TO CRITIC

He extended the invitation in the Commons Wednesday when Rom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) continued to press him for details on the pool, which is being paid for by a group of anonymous donors.

Trudeau said Cossitt could come over any time to practice his diving "even before the water's in the pool."

A VACATION HOME FOR ULTRA-RICH

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. maritime administration has agreed to sell the mothballed superliner S.S. United States for $13 million to a group planning to turn the ship into a luxury floating condominium.

The sale of the ship, which holds the trans-Atlantic crossing record and now lies sealed and rusting alongside an unused pier in Norfolk, Va., is contingent upon the group's depositing $100,000 with the administration by next Thursday and paying the balance in full within 90 days.

The group, W. W. Ventures of Locust Grove, Va., plans to turn the 23-year-old ship, which was built in 1952 at a cost of $79.5 million, into a floating vacation home for the "ultra-rich," according to a spokesman.

Under the plan, 282 apartments would be sold, with the prices ranging from $650,000 for a single room to $2.5 million for an eight-room suite, according to the spokesman.

The conversion would take two years and cost $20 million.

The ship has not sailed since November, 1969, when she was abruptly withdrawn from service.

The ship's former owners, United States Lines of New York, said that during her last eight years at sea the 53,000-ton liner — which could travel at close to 50 m.p.h. — lost close to $28 million.

Altogether, over the 18 years in service, the ship received $118 million in federal subsidies just to keep her operational.

The ship is 990 feet long, and her 12 decks could accommodate 2,000 passengers and 1,000 crew members.

Since she was purchased by the Maritime Administration for about $12 million the government has tried three times to sell her.

Groups or individuals making acceptable bids in the past have failed to meet deadlines for making the $100,000 deposit.

Now the ship lies guarded by only a single watchman, who never ventures more than a dozen feet into her hold.

Paint peeling from the ceilings of walkways hangs in long strips, while her once-mighty turbine engines, which generated 250,000 horsepower, are filled with solidified grease to preserve them.

One former engineer said he feared her massive propeller shafts may now be bent beyond repair, because their weight has not been shifted for two years.

That could have been accomplished by firing up the engine and rotating the shafts periodically, he said.

Four Oppose Thatcher

Times News Services

LONDON — The battle for leadership of Britain's troubled Conservative party exploded into a confused free-for-all today with five contestants in the running to succeed Edward Heath.

Nominations for next Tuesday's second round of balloting among 276 Conservative members of Parliament closed today with four men and a woman as announced candidates for the job.

The Party Wednesday wheeled some of its biggest guns into action to stop Mrs. Margaret Thatcher's leadership bid following her upset plurality win over Heath in the first round of balloting Tuesday.

Canadian Press

At least 11 sites throughout B.C. including two near a major salmon and steelhead river on Vancouver island, are being considered for steel mills, the Vancouver Sun said Wednesday.

Roberts Bank, the lower mainland's superport, might be added to the list of possible sites, the story said.

The Japanese Company which is conducting the steel mill study with the provincial government—Nippon Kohan Kaisha — is believed to favor Roberts Bank because of its mild climate and its proximity to a large population base.

The Sun says several staff members of Environment Canada, who confirmed the list of sites, are concerned that the public seems to be largely unaware of the enormous impact the mill will make on the province's environment and economy.

They said it will cover up to 3,000 acres, employ between 5,000 and 7,000 workers and use six million tons of coal and vast quantities of fresh water, iron ore and lime to enable it to produce a projected four million metric tons of steel a year.

The 11 sites the Sun says are being considered now are:

Three at Prince Rupert—Ridley-Kaien Islands, Digby Island and Port Simpson; one at Kitimat, northwest of the townsite; two near the big Qualicum River, at Bowser and Dunsmuir; and five near Fort St. John—one at Taylor Flats, two on the Pine River and two on Jackfish Lake.

Building the steel mill on the Big Qualicum would be totally unacceptable from an environmental standpoint, the past president of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists said today.

Air pollution from sulfur dioxide released in the coal-burning process in steel milling would be the most serious effect of the mill, Anderson said.

"I also understand that steel mills require a hell of a lot of water" he said.

And the water in the Big Qualicum is already committed to the fishing industry, he said.

Roderick Haig-Brown, conservationist and an authority on salmon, said the possibility of establishing a mill at Bowser is remote.

"Of course, to establish a mill either at Qualicum or

Wood Shipments Dip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Preliminary figures from the B.C. Forest Service show the province's lumber industry shipped 8.5 billion board feet of lumber in 1974, down substantially from the 10.3 billion feet shipped in 1973. Statistics Canada reports that the total of lumber and ties shipped from all B.C. mills for the first 10 months of 1974 was 7.33 billion feet, compared with 7.95 billion feet in the same period in 1973.

OPEC Turns Tables

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign oil producers have invested $11 billion of their escalating oil earnings in the United States, mostly in government bonds and bank deposits, U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon said Wednesday. Simon said the 13 OPEC nations received about $90 billion from their oil sales — four times what they earned in 1973.

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Ethiopian government reinforcements smashed through Eritrean rebel ambushes today to reach the encircled Garrison of Asmara in the seventh day of fighting reported to have killed 1,000 persons.

TOURIST SPENDING UP 15% IN PROVINCE

Tourists spent $759 million in British Columbia last year, an increase of 15 per cent over 1973.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said the increase was "gratifying" in a year when inflation and energy problems had a harmful effect on the number of U.S. citizens visiting all parts of Canada.

While the number of U.S. visitors to B.C. stayed relatively constant, visitors from other parts of Canada increased about 10 per cent, he said, and visitors from overseas increased by 30 per cent over 1973.

"The over-all 15 per cent increase is particularly beneficial to the province when one considers that more British Columbians than ever spent their vacations at home," said Hall.

"As a result our travel account with other areas of Canada and other countries is very much in the black."

Room sales were up about nine per cent over 1973 and restaurants receipts increased by about 12 per cent.

Syncrude May Need More

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government will not go much above $300 million in funds for the Syncrude oil sands, Treasury Board president Jean Chretien told the House of Commons Tuesday.

But he did admit, under pressure from New Democratic Party questioning, that the government is bound to contribute 15 per cent of development costs, even if that figure did exceed $300 million.

And Alberta and Ontario, committed to 10 and five per cent of the costs respectively, could also have to pay more than the $200 million and $100 million reported earlier.

Costs of the northeastern Alberta development already have doubled once.

Any major cost change would mean "all the parties involved will have to sit down and review the situation," said Chretien. If there were a five-or 10-per-cent increase, "some parties will have a hell of a problem and we will be among them."

Chretien said he doubts the project will cost more than the estimated $2 billion. A deal announced Tuesday brought the federal, Alberta and Ontario governments into the project with shares of 15, 10 and five per cent, respectively.

175 BUSES FOR TENDER

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said Wednesday 59 thirty-five-foot diesel city buses, 26 forty-foot fast-buses, 30 forty-foot urban diesel buses, 20 electric trolley buses and 40 articulated trolleybuses will be bought.

Most of the new buses will be used in the Victoria and Vancouver areas but 35 diesels will be used for new transit services in Interior cities.

The vehicles will likely not be delivered until the end of 1975, said Lorimer.

Because of the "impressive design features" of European buses tested last year, said Lorimer, offshore suppliers will be invited to bid on the current order.

U.S. Airmen Aiding Thieu

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. airmen are helping the South Vietnamese air force reorganize a supply system for critical spare parts that has deteriorated in the two years since GIs left.

U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a way around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C141 transport jet flies the men in their green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning.

"Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese air force) straighten itself out."

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement," one source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen underlines the South Vietnamese dependence on U.S. military supplies and technical help.

The United States provides all of South Vietnam's military needs, from items that cost thousands of dollars to 35-cent washers needed to keep helicopters flying.

1½% Charge For Overdue Phone Bills

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission has approved B.C. Tel's request for a 1½-per-cent monthly charge on overdue accounts.

Colin Patterson of B.C. Tel said Wednesday the charge will be effective March 15. He said bills amounting to $10 or less would be exempt.

Patterson said the cost of carrying and collecting overdue accounts has risen rapidly, forcing the company to ask for the charge. He said the company's present unpaid balance averaged about $10 million for each month of 1974.

Group Studying Plan for Long Beach

PORT ALBERNI — Federal parks officials and members of the Alberni-Clayoquot regional board Wednesday agreed to set up a five-man committee to prepare a "massive development" plan for the area surrounding Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach.

George McNight, chairman of the regional board, said the committee would study water, sewage and garbage services for the unorganized area, including the villages of Tofino and Ucluelet.

The plan would be submitted to the federal government with a request for funds to implement the plan and to pay for the installation of services, he said.

"If we are to cope with the thousands of visitors who come to Long Beach we have to provide them with accommodations and essential services," he said. "The villages have not the means to provide the services."

The meeting was attended by senior park officials, including William Turnbull of Calgary, of the western region of Parks Canada, and Jack Holyroyd, superintendent of Pacific Rim National Park.

McNight said the meeting was a success.

He said the committee would look into the possibility of establishing a single water supply system to serve the park, the unorganized area, Tofino and Ucluelet.

"During the summer months Tofino is hard pressed for water due to the large number of visitors," he said.

McKnight also said the regional district would study the matter of imposing stricter land-use controls for the unorganized area surrounding the park to stop the growth of ribbon and fringe development.

He said the regional district last weekend submitted the same proposal for a development plan to a Liberal caucus held in Alberni, but the delegates did not seem to understand the problems facing the national park, Tofino and Ucluelet.

"It is a real problem," he added. "If eventually the area is visited by one million people, we must do something to provide people with essential services."

Americans Borrowing Less And Paying Back Faster

Times News Services

The federal reserve board said Wednesday Consumer borrowing in the U.S. fell by a record $877 million in December, the Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday.

"It's a typical recession response," said Richard Clay, an economist specializing in debt at Morgan Guaranty in New York.

"People are very concerned about the state of their personal finances and want to get monthly payments down in anticipation of a higher rate of unemployment and lower personal income."

The December decline in outstanding installment and non-installment credit followed a $402 million drop in November.

It was the first time total consumer credit has fallen two straight months since May and June, 1958.

President Ford, meanwhile, summoned his top economic advisers to the White House for strategy talks today as his disputes with the heavily Democratic Congress mounted.

Among the disputes were food stamps for the poor, military aid for turkey and the first step in Ford's energy-economy program — a tariff on imported oil.

Among those conferring with Ford were Treasury Secretary William Simon, economic counselor William Seidman, chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb.

The House of Representatives shot another hole in Ford's economy and energy plans Wednesday, voting 309 to 114 to rescind the oil-import-fee increase he announced last month to drive up fuel prices and drive down consumption.

The president was deserted on the vote by nearly a third of House Republicans — and the margin was well beyond the two-thirds needed to override a veto.

The legislation now goes to the Senate, where a majority of 53 members has already gone on record against the plan. A test vote could come sometime next week.

The Senate joined the House Wednesday in casting an overwhelming vote to block a Ford plan to increase the cost of food stamps to the poor on March 1.

Priceless Art Stolen

URBINO, Italy (UPI) — Thieves climbed into the ducal palace of Urbino today and made away with three renaissance paintings an art expert described as "masterpieces among masterpieces."

Police said a portrait by Raphael known as The Mute Woman and two works by Piero della Francesca — the Flagellation and Madonna of Senigallia — were taken.

RIOTS, LOOTING FOLLOW POLICE STRIKE IN PERU

Times News Services

LIMA — Troops fired on bands of young looters who roamed through the downtown streets of Lima today in the aftermath of a police strike that escalated into full-scale rioting.

There were no official reports of casualties. Unofficial counts of the dead in Wednesday's 16 hours of riots ranged up to at least 30.

In one 10-block downtown area looting was so extensive that iron bars had been bent, large plate glass windows shattered and office bills and receipts strewn about.

The government, meanwhile, today decreed a national holiday and residents were ordered to stay out of downtown.

A series of stern warnings, were issued prohibiting "any citizen to meet with any other," giving troops and police the right to search homes at will, and permitting arrests without judges' orders.

Strike 'Censorship' Probe Sought by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic Party MP called Wednesday for an investigation of allegations that broadcasters have censored news reports about a Vancouver radio station strike.

Stuart Leggatt (New Westminster) requested in the Commons that Labor Minister John Munro intervene in the strike at CKLG and that Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier investigate the censorship allegations.

The motion, referring to "allegations of censorship against the Canadian Association of Broadcasters CAB or their affiliates" did not receive the unanimous consent required for debate.

Outside the House, Leggatt said he erred in his reference to the CAB.

He should have referred to allegations against Broadcast News, a subsidiary of The Canadian Press, he said in an interview.

His information was based on reports published in Vancouver saying the news director of radio station CJOR had complained about Broadcast News handling of the strike story.

In an interview from Vancouver, Erin Swangard, CJOR news director, said he complained that voice reports fed Saturday to Broadcast News had been scrapped.

Don Covey, general manager of Broadcast News, said in Toronto the only item cut was a report which included union songs.

"We weren't going to carry union propaganda," he said, noting that Broadcast News carried voice reports by its own reporter later Saturday.

The only other problem with the CKLG situation was a delay of less than two hours in carrying a written storey on the Broadcast News wires.

That was necessary to check information in the story which later was carried, Covey said.

He added that there has been no communication between him and CAB officials over the strike.

Suggestions in Vancouver published reports that there was a possibility of collustion to censor news were erroneous, he said.

Lea, Hogarth Duncan Seminar Guest Speakers

It is a annual event on the topic of local government sponsored by the University of B.C.'s centre for continuing education and the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

Association president, Mayor Bill Moncrief of Cumberland will chair business sections of a meeting to accompany the seminar. A new president will be elected.

Complaint Leads To Clean Rifle

Saanich police investigated a complaint Wednesday night that a person was leaning out a window at 4231 Carey Rd. with a gun.

They found it was a youth cleaning his air rifle and no shots had been fired.

Anacortes Oil Spill

ANACORTES, Wash. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard said Wednesday it is monitoring the cleanup of an oil spill of up to 2,000 gallons that occurred at Texaco's loading dock here early Wednesday.

The coast guard says the cutter Point Richmond was in the right place at the right time when the crude oil was spilled. The coast guard says quick action on the part of the cutter using emergency booms kept the spill contained and away from shore while a private cleanup vessel was dispatched.

The coast guard said the oil was spilled when a tank overflowed as a Texaco tanker was unloading.

The city of Victoria, concerned about several fires that have broken out at its Esquimalt Road temporary garbage holding dump, has engaged security guards to patrol the helicopter landing pad 24 hours a day.

Meanwhile, at a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday, Walker charged the City of Victoria is "using" the senior citizens who attend the activity centre on Fisgard, against the union.

Walker said when the union decided to picket the oil outlet which serves Centennial Square buildings, including the activity centre, it offered to find alternate accommodation so the seniors would not miss out on their hot lunches.

"We found one place ourselves and the Salvation Army offered to help serve the lunches, but the city refused," Walker said. "They figured it would be better publicity to use the senior citizens against us."

City manager Jim Bramley said he had not heard officially about the CUPE offer, but Walker said he believed the offer had been made through Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons who is also the head of the Silver Threads centre.

Four out of eight jurisdictions in the regional bargaining group have locked out staffs. Two more — Esquimalt and Sidney — are expected to be added Monday, leaving one body, Greater Victoria Public Library still in the process of mediation for which a meeting is set for Feb. 17.

The eighth body, Greater Victoria School District, is exempt from the lockout pact made between jurisdictions, and its janitor employees say they do not intend to strike even though they are in a legal position to do so.

Developer Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. land developers have asked the provincial cabinet to establish an appeal board with the power to overrule land development decisions made by municipalities. In a brief to the cabinet's committee on housing, transportation and urban development, the Urban Development Institute said that at present municipalities can frustrate legitimate development proposals put before them.

ISLAND STEEL MILL?

Roberts Bank would be wrong," he added.

Last June, Gary Lauk, B.C economic development minister, announced that a three-phase study on the feasibility of an integrated steel mill would be undertaken jointly by the government and NKK.

The first phase of the study —an investigation of possible sites—is due to be completed Feb. 15. The second phase—detailed economic, social and environmental studies—is scheduled for completion June 30 and the third phase, the final report, is set for Oct. 31.

Lauk said he "didn't deal in speculation or rumor" and would only confirm the feasibility study is continuing.

The first phase should be completed this month, he said, but no announcement will be made concerning its findings until the final report is completed late this year.

"I'm not even aware how many sites are being looked at," said Lauk, when asked why the study group would even consider an area such as the Big Qualicum river.

He said, however, modern steel mills are clean operations, cleaner "than even the smallest pulp mill."

The last phase of the study will involve more detailed analysis of the economic, environmental and social impact of a mill.

Gas Price War: You'd Better Enjoy It While It Lasts

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's continuing gas war is a big break for local motorists—but not for long, says Bob Dunsmuir, president of the Greater Victoria Automotive Retailers Association.

Dunsmuir, chief spokesman for 97 independent service station operators, sees the plot developing this way: Self-seuve stations owned by oil companies will open in more and more locations, selling gas at 57.9 cents a gallon.

Large full-service stations, also owned by gas stations, will cut their prices to meet the competition from the self-service stations—which they also own.

The small corner service station, leased from the oil companies by independest operators, will be forced out of business.

And finally, the oil companies, owning all the remaining gas stations, will be free to raise their prices as they like without competition from independent operators.

Dunsmuir said about 12 independent operators were forced out of business in 1974 and more could be expected this year.

Not that all the departures are entirely voluntary.

"As the lease expires, the operator has to make an application to renew it. If oil gallonage is down, the oil company may just decide not to renew the lease and close the outlet," Dunsmuir said.

The current gas price war is a boon to motorists but is aiding the oil companies in their aim of gaining control of the retail market, he said.

The price cutting was started by the self-serves, continued by the large service stations and has spread across the city.

"Added to this is the fact there is a surplus of gasoline. There seems to be so much we can't give it away. It's a strange situation, considering all the ads on American TV about an energy shortage."

As a result of the surplus and the price-cutting, gasoline is selling at about five cents a gallon less than it was six months ago.

Two department stores, Woodward's and Simpsons-Sears, have cut the price of gas four cents a gallon to 57.9 cents. Imperial Oil's company-owned outlet at Hillside and Shelbourne has cut its price five cents to 59.9. Gulf Oil's company-owned stationed across the street reduced its price 3 cents to 59.9.

Some full-service stations run independently, noticeably the Mohawk chain, are selling as low as 58.9.

"Selling gasoline at such low prices is hurting the independent operator. It can't go on for very long," Dunsmuir says

Better to improve service and make the station more attractive, he said.

"There are many ways to compete besides cutting prices."

Dunsmuir said the independent operators should follow the example of the oil companies and make certain their corner stations are well-lit, clean and not cluttered by miscellaneous cars parked on the lot.

Many corner stations are clean and attractive but others are not.

The small corner stations who will survive in the long run are those who can keep their customers regardless of price, Dunsmuir said.

Because they can't expect to win a price war with the self-service stations and the oil company retail outlets. The oil firms pay a lower wholesale price so their retail prices can be lower.

Dunsmuir said that not every closure of a corner service station is bad news for the consumer. Some stations are superfluous and others are environmental nuisances.

The majority of them, however, perform a needed service and in the long run they will keep the gas price moderate — if they can survive.

The Savagery in Sport: Part of a Sick Society

I go occasionally to the National League hockey games in Vancouver with an intelligent, mild-mannered friend who has season tickets and who, the moment the action begins, turns into a kind of monster.

This man's favorite bellow to the Canucks, whom he alternately worships and despises depending upon their performance, is the familiar cry: "Kill 'em." Though he's the gentlest of men he clearly delights in any fight between two or more players, particularly if one of his gladiators get in a telling punch.

I found myself thinking of this otherwise admirable fellow when I was reading about the case of Hunsberger and Magrum, the B.C. Lions football players who were fined in B.C. Supreme Court and banished by the team management as the result of singularly savage, unprovoked attacks on private citizens.

It's not my view that these brutish men can, in any way, claim any justification for their unprovoked assault on victims who, the evidence showed, had no chance whatever. Even the remark by the presiding judge — "They have been trained to inflict and take great physical punishment in a violent contact sport" — does not imply a link between their profession and a purely private act.

Yet seldom has there been a case that offered such an invitation to ponder the climate of violence in society as a whole and the feeling of shock when it is isolated and localized as it has been in this instance. What we accept every day of our lives we disown when it surfaces in our own backyard.

Television, it seems to me, is the accepted vehicle for public violence. Crime, in its most overt and sadistic terms, is its principal commodity. Our children are brought up, in their own living rooms, on a nightly entertainment diet of murder, rape, beatings, armed holdups, muggings and the rest. As parents, we sigh and condone it. Indeed, what was so shocking in the case of Hunsperger and Magrum is yawned over every night in millions of homes.

It is just as appalling that sports, once considered the one pursuit that invited fair play, is now mainly an outlet for hidden hostilities and aggressiveness. This is, of course, a worldwide phenomenon. Yet few other athletic endeavors contribute to the lust for violence as do the so-called Canadian national games — hockey and Canadian football. Those qualities that Hunsperger and Magrum displayed in their incomprehensive private fury are precisely the qualities that are admired and cheered to an echo in the stadium or arena, the qualities for which they were, in fact, hired.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians, men and women who would be the first to abhor the savagery of these two players, go each week to watch contests in which the essential ingredient is force, in which few matches end without serious injury to one or more players.

In the playing of the Grey Cup, for example, it was crucial to injure a quarterback to win the game. Sports writers from coast to coast hailed the player who hurt him enough. In hockey the team with the greatest draw is a team of out-and-out ruffians; the most famous player is a man who can be counted on, at least once, to punch with maniacal pugnaciousness at the head of an opposing player.

Millions of other Canadians watch on prive-time television as these sadistic contests are played each week. In hockey we often see, through the camera's implacable eye, the blood upon the ice or the flare-up between two or more players usually repeated for the edification of the viewers. Howie Meeker and the rest of the commentators squeal their piggy admiration and assessment of fights that, if they happened on a streetcorner, would result in arrests and imprisonment.

These, remember, are our national sports, played by our children, and one result is that violence spreads downward through the amateur and semi-professional teams so that we are, in effect, rearing a new generation of sports enthusiasts who emulate the grim, win-at-any-price attitude of their heroes.

Like the formula in television, the link between the number of imbeciles who watch a given program, thus determining the sponsorship and the preferred time spots of shows such as Cannon, Police Woman, The Magician and the rest, so the promoters of professional sports have discovered that violence is the commodity that sells best. They are thus in the business of a mass audience blood-bath that realizes enormous profits.

It is only when this poses a threat to our personal lives, when we see what the admirable skills of two football players can mean when they're unleashed outside the playing field, that we may reflect for a moment on a sickness in society that goes unchecked.

'Vital, Lively' Programming CBC's Target

Requested architectural details were scant but programming information somewhat more helpful when two senior CBC officials today briefed city aldermen concerning plans for the proposed CBC radio-television station in Victoria.

The city's finance committee was told the radio operation, offering full-network AM service over the FM frequency, would provide about 37 hours of local community programming each week, while initially the television service would provide some 15 hours rising to 17 hours within the first three years.

Hugh Palmer, director of television for the CBC in Vancouver, said the main features of local content in both services would be regular "blocks" of information programming: on radio from 6 to 9 a.m., 1 to 2 p.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.; on television from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Both local community program blocks will have a resource base sufficient to ensure vital and lively programming with emphasis on local news, weather and features," he stated in a report.

"The latter will include community events, including activities from the legislature, sports and humor. We propose more than the usual amount of commentary analysis."

Last week Victoria city council tabled a motion to sell to the CBC for $500,000 a parcel of city-owned land on Blanshard between Hillside and Kings, until more information was forthcoming on the form of the proposed development.

Palmer and James Wighton, B.C regional engineer for the broadcasting authority, told aldermen today that plans for the production centre haven't been prepared but it will probably be a "low-rise" two-storey building providing about 36,000 square feet of studio and office space.

Its main features would include one two-camera television studio and two radio studios. Of the total expected investment of $5.8 million, the Blanshard site itself would account for about $5 million.

The corporation's plans are dependent on a successful application to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission for the use of Channel 10 for television programming. Competitors for the channel include the provincial government and private concerns.

Palmer said the Channel 10 television transmitter would be located on Saturna Island and the FM radio transmitter at or near Mount Work.

If the application to the CRTC is successful, he said it is expected both stations would be on the air within 26 to 30 months of receiving approval.

The radio station would have a staff of about 21 and the television station's personnel would number about 64.

Mayor Peter Pollen asked why a Victoria radio service would see the CBC relegated to the "obscurity" of FM, which is received by less than 10 per cent of the listening audience according to the CRTC's own figures.

Palmer replied that cost factors were largely responsible as the capital cost of setting up an AM station is roughly three times the cost of FM.

He also said FM is technically superior, adding: "In terms of buying habits the trend is already in favor of FM."

But Pollen said the higher capital cost would be worth it to ensure "20 times the audience."

UVic Senators Off To Stumbling Start

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

University of Victoria's monthly senate meeting stumbled to a slow start Wednesday, braked by a tedious discussion on the minutes of the last meeting.

Although the agenda was lighter than usual — UVic President Dr. Howard Petch announced last month that he hoped to pare down extraneous items and conduct meetings with dispatch — it was the agenda itself that sparked longest discussion.

Discussion dealt mainly with positioning items on the agenda, and the inevitable errors and ommisions in the minutes of the January meeting, which are not given the press.

He moved that senate scrap the circulation of minutes of the last meeting, which tend to prompt "anecdotal discussions."

Those discussions "don't pertain to the decision making of university policy and should be conducted with speed and dispatch," he said.

"That's the kind of attitude I deplore and I'd like it recorded" (in the minutes)," said Pal.

He argued the minutes were germaine to proper procedure, and corrections to the minutes mandatory.

Although Young's motion disappeared in the discussion without a final vote-taking, it was effective in moving the minds of senators on to new business. (The open session was conducted in only two hours.)

Warm Hawaii Storm

A warm storm from the Hawaiian Islands hit the Victoria area today and is expected to remain Friday, bringing milder temperatures, clouds and some rain.

Some parts of the Victoria area will see a bit of snow tonight, the weatherman said, but by Friday all precipitation should be in the form of rain.

Highs today were expected to reach near 40, and tomorrow they should be in the low 40s. Overnight lows will be in the low to mid 30s.

SCHIBLI ELECTED

Schibli's former position as First vice-president of the council was won by Jim Walker, president of Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Maurice Clayton of Local 258 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was elected second-vice-president and carpenters' union member Bill Weavers won the position of sergeant-at-arms.

Employers Predict Good Year

Greater Victoria employers predict 1975 will equal and possibly exceed last year's market performance, despite a bleak forecast for the construction industry, says Canada Manpower.

Stan Purdy, manager of the Victoria Manpower Centre, said Wednesday the January month-end survey of employers and employment conditions shows a buoyant economy, although some setbacks are occurring in other areas.

He said most retail merchants report sales are "very good", and in many cases, show an improvement over last year.

"While the sales of major appliances, automobiles and other major goods have shown a decline in many areas, most Victoria dealers advise that they are pleased with the present sales picture.

"They do not foresee any change in the near future," Purdy said.

Some smaller merchants, however, report customers are beginning to "shop around' more before purchasing goods.

Job listings in the Manpower Job Information Centre number about 130 and a steady flow of about 30 listings are received daily from Victoria firms.

There are openings for waiters, waitresses, day workers, auto mechanics, engineers and insurance salesmen.

Only gloomy forecast is in the construction industry, said Purdy.

"Local home-builders are not optimistic that 1975 will show any better performance than last year."

Purdy quoted figures compiled by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which show that only 2,630 housing units were started in 1974, compared to 4,013 in 1973, a decline of more than one third.

Builders report high construction costs and mortgage interest rates are placing new homes out of reach of buyers who have small down payments.

A slight decline is reported in mortgage rates and the money supply is reported adequate by local trust and mortgage companies.

Total real estate sales in the Victoria area during 1974 were $62.7 million and the industry anticipates 1975 will equal or exceed this figure.

Purdy feels it is too early to determine the effect of the current dispute between the municipalities and their workers. Any prolonged shutdown, however, is bound to affect the economic life of the community, he said.

Puccio and Garbanzo clowning away

These Little Clowns Stayed Home

Running away to join the circus is a fantasy entertained by many young people through the years.

Now they're Puccio and Garbanzo, the clowns; Professor Plum, juggler extraordinary; the six-legged Staggering Beauty and other beasts; and Doc Moon, the one-man lunar band.

The circus will be seen at Open Space, 510 Fort, Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Dump Hassles Send Trucks Elsewhere

At least one refuse collection firm is using a private garbage dump in order to avoid confrontation with pickets at Hartland road dump which is owned by the Capital Regional District.

The regional district is among municipal employers who have locked out staff in their dispute with Canadian Union of Public Employees, which initiated strike action Jan. 27.

Cypress Disposal Ltd., which lists Greater Victoria School district among its clients, said today it had switched to an undisclosed alternative site because it has no wish to fight with CUPE and will not cross picket lines.

Some other private disposal operators have adopted a similar attitude and are refusing to go through the picket being maintained by the Saanich CUPE Local 374 at Hartland Road.

Since the regional district acquired the Hartland site from its former owner Victoria Disposal Co. Ltd.—which remains the operator—other garbage dumps in the region were closed, leaving as the only alternative the use of private land not recognized for the purpose.

Jim Walker, president of Local 50 and chairman of the regional CUPE bargaining group, said the union is aware of the Cypress arrangement but has not determined as yet where the garbage is being dumped. He said it is believed an excavating contractor is providing a site.

Meanwhile CUPE today underlined its picketing policy, embodying the right to inform the public of its legal strike-lockout position. Walker said pickets have the right to tell drivers intending to enter the dump of their purpose, but not to detain or obstruct traffic on the public road.

Wednesday there were brushes between pickets and garbage truck drivers, pickets blocked the road with a pick-up truck and in one case a picket was bruised by a truck.

Walker said there are "a lot people who respect the line and take off." Police have been watching the picket line.

Effectiveness of the picket policy showed up today when B.C. Hydro agreed to re-route buses from Esquimalt Road to Bay Street in order to avoid crossing a CUPE line at Johnson Street lift bridge.

The Esquimalt and Colville-Munro routes are the only two affected, Hydro said, adding that the situation would be reviewed later today.

OWNER BEWARE!

ARVADA, Colo. (AP) — Owners of pets that stray in this Denver suburb had better watch out. A drafting error in the city's animal control ordinance, just noticed, provides that if a stray pet picked up by the city is not claimed by its owner within 24 hours, the owner will be destroyed.

IRA Threat Puts Dublin in Huddle

Times News Services

DUBLIN — Premier Liam Cosgrave called a special cabinet meeting today, the second within 12 hours, to discuss a threat by the Irish Republican Army to assassinate two cabinet ministers if any of the imprisoned 15 IRA hunger strikers die.

"They will review the whole security situation in the light of the latest developments," a government source said.

Details of the threat came after members of the parliamentary Laobr party were briefed privately Wednesday by Justice Minister Patrick Cooney, on the hunger strike situation.

The Labor party sources said that Cooney had indicated the IRA warning was transmitted to the government 10 days ago. Separate messages have been carried to the government by two groups of intermediaries. Both groups said they had been requested by the provisionals to tell the government that if any hunger striker died, two ministers would be killed.

Members of the provisional Sein Fein, the IRA's legal political wing, mounted pickets on the Dublin headquarters of all the main political parties in support of the hunger strikes Wednesday.

In Northern Ireland, A gunman burst into the Shankill Road headquarters of the protestant west Belfast Ulster defence association today and shot and wounded West Belfast UDA leader Charles Harding Smith in the abdomen and shoulder.

The body of a young woman was found shot twice through the head on a country road outside Larne, 25 miles northeast of Belfast today. Police said they had not yet identified the woman and could not say whether it was a sectarian killing.

PM OFFERS BIG SPLASH TO CRITIC

He extended the invitation in the Commons Wednesday when Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) continued to press him for details on the pool, which is being paid for by a group of anonymous donors.

Trudeau said Cossitt could come over any time to practice his diving "even before the water's in the pool."

A VACATION HOME FOR ULTRA-RICH

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. maritime administration has agreed to sell the mothballed superliner S.S. United States for $13 million to a group planning to turn the ship into a luxury floating condominium.

The sale of the ship, which holds the trans-Atlantic crossing record and now lies sealed and rusting alongside an unused pier in Norfolk, Va., is contingent upon the group's depositing $100,000 with the administration by next Thursday and paying the balance in full within 90 days.

The group, W. W. Ventures of Locust Grove, Va., plans to turn the 23-year-old ship, which was built in 1952 at a cost of $79.5 million, into a floating vacation home for the "ultra-rich," according to a spokesman.

Under the plan, 282 apartments would be sold, with the prices ranging from $650,000 for a single room to $2.5 million for an eight-room suite, according to the spokesman.

The conversion would take two years and cost $20 million.

The ship has not sailed since November, 1969, when she was abruptly withdrawn from service.

The ship's former owners, United States Lines of New York, said that during her last eight years at sea the 53,000-ton liner — which could travel at close to 50 m.p.h. — lost close to $28 million.

Altogether, over the 18 years in service, the ship received $118 million in federal subsidies just to keep her operational.

The ship is 990 feet long, and her 12 decks could accommodate 2,000 passengers and 1,000 crew members.

Since she was purchased by the Maritime Administration for about $12 million the government has tried three times to sell her.

Groups or individuals making acceptable bids in the past have failed to meet deadlines for making the $100,000 deposit.

Now the ship lies guarded by only a single watchman, who never ventures more than a dozen feet into her hold.

Paint peeling from the ceilings of walkways hangs in long strips, while her once-mighty turbine engines, which generated 250,000 horsepower, are filled with solidified grease to preserve them.

One former engineer said he feared her massive propeller shafts may now be bent beyond repair, because their weight has not been shifted for two years.

That could have been accomplished by firing up the engine and rotating the shafts periodically, he said.

Four Oppose Thatcher

Times News Services

LONDON — The battle for leadership of Britain's troubled Conservative party exploded into a confused free-for-all today with five contestants in the running to succeed Edward Heath.

Nominations for next Tuesday's second round of balloting among 276 Conservative members of Parliament closed today with four men and a woman as announced candidates for the job.

The Party Wednesday wheeled some of its biggest guns into action to stop Mrs. Margaret Thatcher's leadership bid following her upset plurality win over Heath in the first round of balloting Tuesday.

The three new entrants are James Prior, one-time agriculture minister and leader of the Commons; Sir Geoffrey Howe, former solicitor-general and consumer minister; and John Peyton, a former transport minster.

By what is obviously no coincidence, they are neatly positioned to cut down Mrs. Thatcher's support.

NEWS BRIEFS

Canadian Press

At least 11 sites throughout B.C. including two near a major salmon and steelhead river on Vancouver Island are being considered for steel mills, the Vancouver Sun said Wednesday.

Roberts Bank, the lower mainland's superport, might be added to the list of possible sites, the story said.

The Japanese company which is conducting the steel mill study with the provincial government—Nippon Kohan Kaisha — is believed to favor Roberts Bank because of its mild climate and its proximity to a large population base.

The Sun says several staff members of Environment Canada, who confirmed the list of sites, are concerned that the public seems to be largely unaware of the enormous impact the mill will make on the province's environment and economy.

They said it will cover up to 3,000 acres, employ between 5,000 and 7,000 workers and use six million tons of coal and vast quantities of fresh water, iron ore and lime to enable it to produce a projected four million metric tons of steel a year.

The 11 sites the Sun says are being considered now are:

Three at Prince Rupert — Ridley-Kaien Islands, Digby Island and Port Simpson; one at Kitimat, northwest of the townsite; two near the Big Qualicum River, at Bowser and Dunsmuir; and five near Fort St. John—one at Taylor Flats, two on the Pine River and two on Jackfish Lake.

Building the steel mill on the Big Qualicum would be totally unacceptable from an environmental standpoint, the past president of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists said today.

"I have sufficient faith in this government that it won't be built either on the Big Qualicum or at Roberts Bank," said Elton Anderson.

Air pollution from sulfur dioxide released in the coal-burning process in steel milling would be the most serious effect of the mill, Anderson said.

"I also understand that steel mills require a hell of a lot of water " he said.

And the water in the Big Qualicum is already committed to the fishing industry, he said.

Anderson said Kitimat or some place in northern B.C. would be a more suitable site for a mill.

Roderick Haig-Brown, conservationist and an authority on salmon, said the possibility of establishing a mill at Bowser is remote.

"I don't think the government is considering establishing a mill on the island or at Roberts Bank," he said. "I think the sites being considered are Prince Rupert, Kitimat or the Peace River."

"Of course, to establish a mill either at Qualicum or

Wood Shipments Dip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Preliminary figures from the B.C. Forest Service show the province's lumber industry shipped 8.5 billion board feet of lumber in 1974, down substantially from the 10.3 billion feet shipped in 1973. Statistics Canada reports that the total of lumber and ties shipped from all B.C. mills for the first 10 months of 1974 was 7.33 billion feet, compared with 7.95 billion feet in the same period in 1973.

OPEC Turns Tables

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign oil producers have invested $11 billion of their escalating oil earnings in the United States, mostly in government bonds and bank deposits, U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon said Wednesday. Simon said the 13 OPEC nations received about $90 billion from their oil sales — four times what they earned in 1973.

TOURIST SPENDING UP 15% IN PROVINCE

Tourists spent $759 million in British Columbia last year, an increase of 15 per cent over 1973.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said the increase was "gratifying" in a year when inflation and energy problems had a harmful effect on the number of U.S. citizens visiting all parts of Canada.

While the number of U.S. visitors to B.C. stayed relatively constant, visitors from other parts of Canada increased about 10 per cent, he said, and visitors from overseas increased by 30 per cent over 1973.

"The over-all 15 per cent increase is particularly beneficial to the province when one considers that more British Columbians than ever spent their vacations at home," said Hall.

"As a result our travel account with other areas of Canada and other countries is very much in the black."

Room sales were up about nine per cent over 1973 and restaurants receipts increased by about 12 per cent.

Tourism is B.C.'s third largest industry.

Most Active Stocks

VANCOUVER (CP)—Prices were up in light trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today. Volume was 1,530,922 shares.

On the industrial board, Canterra rose .03 to .31 on 27,000 shares. Laurentide was unchanged at $8 on 7,500. Canadian Javelin was up .62½ at $10.62½ on 3,600 shares. Massey-Ferguson was unchanged at $15 on 2,700 shares. Newmark was up .02 at $1.30 and Venture fell .01 on .32.

Gibraltar Mines, which had a low of $3.50 in December, reached $5 during morning trade. J. L. McPherson, vice-president, finance, of Placer Developments which controls Gibraltar, said political problems in Peru likely caused the interest.

"Any time there is trouble in one of those copper producing countries, the stocks go up," he said.

Valley Copper advanced .50 to $6 and Afton was firm at $3.90 bid.

175 BUSES FOR TENDER

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said Wednesday 59 thirty-five-foot diesel city buses, 26 forty-foot fastbuses, 30 forty-foot urban diesel buses, 20 electric trolley buses and 40 articulated trolleybuses will be bought.

Most of the new buses will be used in the Victoria and Vancouver areas but 35 diesels will be used for new transit services in Interior cities.

The vehicles will likely not be delivered until the end of 1975, said Lorimer.

Because of the "impressive design features" of European buses tested last year, said Lorimer, offshore suppliers will be invited to bid on the current order.

Syncrude May Need More

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government will not go much above $300 million in funds for the Syncrude oil sands, Treasury Board president Jean Chretien told the House of Commons Tuesday.

But he did admit, under pressure from New Democratic Party questioning, that the government is bound to contribute 15 per cent of development costs, even if that figure did exceed $300 million.

And Alberta and Ontario, committed to 10 and five per cent of the costs respectively, could also have to pay more than the $200 million and $100 million reported earlier.

Costs of the northeastern Alberta development already have doubled once.

Any major cost change would mean "all the parties involved will have to sit down and review the situation," said Chretien. If there were a five or 10-per-cent increase, "some parties will have a hell of a problem and we will be among them."

Chretien said he doubts the project will cost more than the estimated $2 billion. A deal announced Tuesday brought the federal, Alberta and Ontario governments into the project with shares of 15, 10 and five per cent, respectively.

U.S. Airmen Aiding Thieu

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. airmen are helping the South Vietnamese air force reorganize a supply system for critical spare parts that has deteriorated in the two years since GIs left.

U.S. government ground rules forbid military visitors from being in Vietnam more than four days, but there is a way around the rules.

Each fourth day a big C141 transport jet flies the men in their green fatigues, jungle boots and baseball caps to the Philippines, then brings them back in the morning.

"I guess we're not supposed to be here," shrugged a sergeant at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airfield as his company waited for a flight out.

"Well, we are. We're here for 60 days to try to help the VNAF (Vietnamese air force) straighten itself out."

"They are logistics specialists who come and go on an administrative basis to help with the aid program set up under the provisions of the Paris agreement," one source said.

The unpublicized presence of the airmen underlines the South Vietnamese dependence on U.S. military supplies and technical help.

The United States provides all of South Vietnam's military needs, from items that cost thousands of dollars to 35-cent washers needed to keep helicopters flying.

1½% Charge For Overdue Phone Bills

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission has approved B.C. Tel's request for a 1½-per-cent monthly charge on overdue accounts.

Colin Patterson of B.C. Tel said Wednesday the charge will be effective March 15. He said bills amounting to $10 or less would be exempt.

Patterson said the cost of carrying and collecting overdue accounts has risen rapidly, forcing the company to ask for the charge. He said the company's present unpaid balance averaged about $10 million for each month of 1974.

Group Studying Plan for Long Beach

PORT ALBERNI — Federal parks officials and members of the Alberni-Clayoquot regional board Wednesday agreed to set up a five-man committee to prepare a "massive development" plan for the area surrounding Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach.

George McNight, chairman of the regional board, said the committee would study water, sewage and garbage services for the unorganized area, including the villages of Tofino and Ucluelet.

The plan would be submitted to the federal government with a request for funds to implement the plan and to pay for the installation of services, he said.

"If we are to cope with the thousands of visitors who come to Long Beach we have to provide them with accommodations and essential services," he said. "The villages have not the means to provide the services."

The meeting was attended by senior park officials, including William Turnbull of Calgary, of the western region of Parks Canada, and Jack Holyroyd, superintendent of Pacific Rim National Park.

McNight said the meeting was a success.

He said the committee would look into the possibility of establishing a single water supply system to serve the park, the unorganized area, Tofino and Ucluelet.

"During the summer months Tofino is hard pressed for water due to the large number of visitors," he said.

McKnight also said the regional district would study the matter of imposing stricter land-use controls for the unorganized area surrounding the park to stop the growth of ribbon and fringe development.

He said the regional district last weekend submitted the same proposal for a development plan to a Liberal caucus held in Alberni, but the delegates did not seem to understand the problems facing the national park, Tofino and Ucluelet.

"It is a real problem," he added. "If eventually the area is visited by one million people, we must do something to provide people with essential services."
